A detective piece indeed! A nation full of kemonomimi? How interesting! Although most of your factbooks are WIP I'm forced to go off them as they are all that I have. A nation's politics can say a lot about them and although much isn't written, you seem to have a more left-leaning spin? Since the description of the right-wing party includes their racism, but it may be more nuanced than that (and I'm really hoping it is since I'm tired of seeing nations with a clear bias.). It really isn't much to go on but it's a start.

You're adept at English, and don't use shorthand. So that would indicate an English speaking country. The Kemonomimi obviously indicates a ~~weeb~~ that ~~knows what's cute~~ an American, Canadian or Japanese bias. Since Japanese culture rubs off well on America and Canada, and not as much in other English speaking countries. So the real trick was deciding whether you were American, or Canadian, and after hunting for any sign of Imperial or Metric System I saw a few KM's flying about so I'm going to assume Canadian. I'd like to narrow you down to a province, but I can't quite get it that narrow. I can list a few though, so here goes something:

Alberta, Manitoba, Ontario, Newfoundland, New Brunswick, and Nova Scotia.

That list is made, based on the general highest political party in each of those provinces are on the left. Quebec is excluded since most people there speak french first so it's less likely, and Prince Edwards Island is also excluded cause that just isn't very likely. So bam! Detective piece over!

Edit: NINJA'D OH JESUS

Boring people! One factbook that showcases a clear left-wing bias. Checking the policies tab on your nation Gay marriage is illegal and so is divorce. So left-wing but no progressive. I'm gonna take a shot at Scotland since I have very little to go on and am panicking a little since I got ninja'd after typing a wall (I should have seen that coming tbh). So yeah, Scotland! Final Answer!
