They recognize a popular cartoon show with its main cast majority comprising mostly of Faunus characters, and even Faunus voice actors, as a sign of fall of Human civilization.

Wojakiewism is a form of slavic nationalism, combined with mixed economy and soviet aesthetics.

Just curious: what do you mean with the first part? I'm afraid I don't follow (I'm familiar with the phrase "manifest destiny" as it refers to the US, though).

Nacrad's new MBT apparently rivals the M1A2, the T-90A, and the T-14 Armata.

I have learned that the Caleshan patron deity is actually quite a reasonable fellow. He isn't interested in enforcing his ideology, razing cities, and neither has any interest dabbling in petty vices nor any grandeur of unparalleled riches. He is truly a god that his people can be definitely be proud of fanatical worship.

BN note: Try to learn something from the 'Devil of Vacuo', I have heard too much of Livi's death already. Don't just copy paste stuff.

They seceded from their host nation because a crackdown on non-prescription drugs was seen as the epitome of double-plus bullshit and so they resolved to make a more chill union.

Insane. From what I learned, there are multiple 'clans' in the country that compete against each other to increase their average quality. They don't actually go to war with each other, but they do wargame-like scenarios to help boost their military, without taking casualties. Until recently, they have been closed off to the outside world.

I believe that my factbook can use a bit more specification into the smaller parts of the government, instead of just speaking about the general government.

Also, sorry to whoever is gonna write about mine since it sucks.

They worship a wholesome ball of pink paint that's actually a reincarnation/iteration of all the not!wholesomeness in the cosmos, bundled up into a sort of anti-anti-wholesome ball. Despite being such a completely inoffensive religion, the Spanish in impeccable Spanish form repressed it and essentially burned the religion to the ground, which, well, par for the course, I suppose. This in addition to terrorism and a general air of anti-Western sentiment in Tamakuni contributes to their absolute vehement seething hatred for all things Pope-Hat-related. Well, that's fair.

Despite the projection of strength Ari might want to give off - combined with the horse archers and spears, Kiu Ghesik is not in a good place geopolitically. Population dynamics and their settled neighbors in turn put pressure on them to settle, which would cause them to potentially lose their culture and risk collapse. The other option appears to be a VERY GOOD IDEA and involves just lashing out at their neighbors and raiding them in proper Scythian fashion. Rather than finding a compromise or middle ground, Ari opted for the VERY GOOD IDEA and will no doubt probably be the scourge of the entire region if she isn't already.

The first version of the Power Armor that was used by the Federal Remnants had some minor problems which made the government work for 50 years to improve them by creating the Mark II. These problems include, but are not limited to, having reactor meltdowns, making the suit either unusable or in extremely rare cases - blowing up into a million lethal fragments, irradiating an area of 200 meters.

Their nation - or at least a part of it - used to be a stunning and prosperous oasis, but through the exploitation of a highly desirable rare-earth resource called "Dust Crystals" the entire region became desertified. To top it all off, the companies who moved there to extract the Dust Crystal were less than loving of their workers, and the public services which the region depended on were privatised in the name of efficiency.
