But let's face the truth, she ain't gonna exactly love us, and that's not because we are "undisciplined anarchist rabble", there is another reason. She will probably hate us, because we have a sapient AI in our Council, who enjoys all civil rights of any other Skyhooker. And I don't have any illusions. "This Mechanator intrigues me. He went from a man who would contribute little to this world, a retailer, to one of the highest-ranking and most notable generals of the country in some time. I, for one, had never cared for the background of my subordinates. It is the results and the usefulness of my subordinates which matters, after all... but his story intrigues me. His fanatic beliefs in the Paramount must stem from his gratefulness that he was saved and pulled into his own dream by violence and revolution under the Paramount. It reminds me of a number of my own notable men who were pulled from the lowest points of their life, especially Bucciari's comrades. And for that, I commend him."

"Racial intolerance and fascist views will only slow down your path to progress. Even if it is against your ideology, if you want to hold on to power, you must reject aspects of your ideology and look deeper into who they really are. For example, despite what 4chan may say, Muslims can be your greatest allies when combatting the Jewish people due to the politics of Israel. Not that I support judging any for their race, I am simply saying that unless you desire to conflict yourself and your ideology, you may desire to look deeper into your own beliefs and see if they are really the correct options. I know for a fact that every decision of mine is the 'right' one."

"The Paramount is definitely a leader an admire. He took power into his hands, no matter the method, honorable or not, he had never tried playing or tempting his food, and most importantly, he made sure to solidify his power. That is a value I can respect, even in the face of his oppressive politics... though turning every citizen into a machine is certainly a concerning goal."
