So Aroni is a recognized nuclear power adherent to the Non-Proliferation Treaty. Now, they have 2000 nukes which is seemingly a lot but powers like Russia and the US have 6000 of them in real-life. They also have chemical weapons and ain't that illegal.

Unlike I previously thought, Le Patron doesn't hold much political power. He does seem to have enormous influence over the people's opinions and sentiments, though.

Their ranking system indicates that not only have they colonized their stellar system, they also have access to inter-stellar travel by means of ships that are nearing relativistic speeds and/or the use of wormholes.

Draemon is an interesting case, as they started out as a democratic society and then become a one-part state. They strictly enforce various morality laws, such as laws against fornication and adultery, and selling immoral artwork can result in corporal punishment.

Edit:

A nation of catgirls, 2 out every 100 being prostitutes, where individualism is connected to a higher order in a gynocentric and stratified society.

The military of Outer Acharet is incredibly motivated, with a morale supplemented just as much by faith as it is by the enthusiastic and skilled elite soldiery making up its center. As such, almost every unit has at least one chaplain attached to every platoon, and the military of Outer Acharet is never wanting for sergeants and non-commissioned officers willing to pass down their experience to the younger soldiery, even if that experience amounts to the best way to strut at a parade and shine one's shoes.

Their nation was formed after the collapse of the United States after WWII and had a turbulent first few decades, with one President being a massive kleptocrat, A March on Austin leading to bloodbath, and several other conflicts. Eventually in 2077 Insurgia managed to achieve some stability.

What if Eastern Rome survived?

Basic Overview: Basically an althist where Basil II actually has decent successors who build on his achievements, resulting in a STRONK ERE that beats back the Sejuks and eventually does it's own reconquesta in the Middle East. Also, The Crusades never happened, the Viking conquest of Britain succeeded, Genghis Khan died as a young prisoner in a tribal camp, Alexander Nevsky united Russia, and the HRE became a centralized state and destroyed France and the Normans.

Okay, but I'll start off with saying I initially assumed it was all of Asia, and not just the southeast.

That being said, they do at least focus on historical thought experimentation and not just weeb or keebism, and them having a shared universe with other nations is really something I wish I'd see more of, or even participate in, on this account or my serious one.

That, and they're a coffee drinker. You can imagine my opinion on that.

Leaf water good. Bean water bad. David Ricardo was on to something and so was Eugene Stoner.

Only the trends are canon, not individual stats. If you want to get angry very quickly, I recommend Twitter.

They practice something called sacrifice where they put boars, deers, and other animals on an altar in temples or in front of statues of their deities. Warriors do these to receive "mystical powers" from the Gods.
