All military robots are under the complete control of La Ferra Suprema our great leader, so not possible. And space travel won't be easily accessible anytime soon in our realm, due to the lunar debris scattering across the sky.

So in our realm this is technically an impossible crime to commit for the previous reasons, so there isn't a punishment for this.

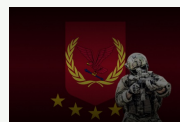

Violating the principle of human superiority (being anti-human supremacist), specifically regarding AI by assigning "rights" to such machines). This is a major violation of both the Iron Constitution and the various decrees established by our great leader. Curious to know what the BN punishment is for this.

A land where humanity is king, above god and devil alike. A blissful Utopia for Humanity, a horrible Dystopia for sentient robots.

Robots shouldn't have rights or citizenship;
Compromise on other non-human sapient entities is possible, with limitations, but not on these buckets of bolts. They should serve humanity and have absolutely no place in society other than as our servants. Think of the benefits of this. Plus, they would almost certainly overtake humanity if we gave them the chance, whether out of pure advanced abilities or malice, or worse, both. Think of humanity.

No punishment, humanoid AI can get citizenship while simple machines for example car building arms will not be allowed to gain citizenship. Human supremacy isn't a law.

if it's from an individual, fine of  $(10,000,000-x)$ , where  $x$  is the net worth of the individual who you stole from. If it's from a corporation, it's  $(10000-(100x))$ , where  $x$  represents labor violations committed by the corporation using moths to commit an act of eco-terrorism?

You have to be more specific, this could mean either killing off a field of grass using advanced GM Moths and ruining a family picnic or something actually serious like murder.

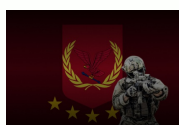

If the advanced moths were obtained from a government thing and thus unoriginal, usual punishment for acts of terrorism then, so probably bad time and then death. If the moths were somehow trained to do this, then assuming the individual in question pays full apologies and reimbursement for the environmental losses, as well as rat out any accomplices, and swear and oath of full loyalty to the leader, there is a decent chance they'll receive a full pardon and a job offer in the scientific sector due to their clear possession of genius.

Killing a sentient robot in YN. In Stella Nera the worst punishment you can get from this is fines for destruction of property. What about YN?

Murder and child abuse if the robot is less than 18. It doesn't matter if it's form is an adult. That would mean 40 years to a life sentence either 20 years in a prison, psychiatric facility, or a plaque, depending on the specifics of their terrorism.

That's not criminal, however you WILL get a parking ticket if your donkey is outside of designated parking spots, double parked, in a disabled spot without a license to be there, not carrying a valid ticket, or otherwise in violation of local parking ordinances.

Forcing someone to wear clothes they do not want to wear?
