"He seems amicable enough. An efficiency-centric outlook on governmental management bereft of excessive idealistic ballast, alongside a healthy approach to the furthering of technological development, and a distaste for potentially conflict-inducing diplomatic tactics. Prepared for war, though not devoted to its pursuit... yes, he fits an acceptable metric. My evaluation is positive. Of course, he could stand to gain so much more if he were to abandon the few idealistic strings that have him overfocus on social management and the like... but alas, that appears to be a societal thread, rather deeply ingrained. Human nature, if you will. By no means is it immutable... but most of us aren't quite there yet. A sad truth, but one I have by now come to accept."

"The last interaction we shared he asked me the question, if I believe in the progression of science.

The answer to this question is yes, of course. I've been here since the beginning I used a hunk of metal as a weapon now people shoot little metal needles that tear into you. And so much more in mean of warfare.

But warfare isnt all, I've seen it heal, replace the common roadblocks of man. Create life, take life, protect. Stumbling back to Lowblood I've seen our advances. And look forward to seeing it go further without forced interference.

I'm fine with testing, when not at war. I highly respect you, while we have advanced in many ways, your nation has put all into science. It is admirable to say the least, I'm one of the few that allow testing." - The first king

"Goddammit! I'm still not used to this! We should get you a little bell or something... Well, nothing's been happening lately. I was just thinking about that scientist who went missing a while ago... What was his name? Hatting? Hotring? Well, it doesn't matter. All I know's that his name was Ismael. You know, like that latino journalist from Florida" - Tobias Jones, Tanner's partner

"Who are you talking about? I've never heard of a person named like that" - Tanner

"Well, sort of. Police raided his office a few weeks back and a ton of documents have found their way over to the public eye. Things about something called Aura; which is like magic, some sort of space ark in case of a World War Three, a freakin' redesign of the spleen... You name it, the guy planned and designed it. The guy was a genius, and a really damn good one at it" - Jones

"Jones, are you even listening to me?" - Tanner

"What? What did I say?" - Jones

"You were just rambling about a missing scientist and magic and space arks... Well, the point is that I asked you something about it and you just ignored me!" - Tanner

"Man! We ain't got time for your hallucinations. Drive the damn car!" - Jones

"What I think is that you need to stop reading science fiction. It's messing with your head, John" - Jones

"No, I'm being serious. It's a threat, it's like a hivemind of sorts-look, it doesn't matter. The point is I've heard of it on KEOC and it was probably on the radio a minute ago!" - Tanner

Mr. Auron has triumphed over the horrors of war against his brothers and sisters and nearing the end of the tragedy. He has established himself as the executive head of the new regime and has implemented popular policies to appease what's left of the factions remaining after the civil war. However, I will disagree with his policy on equal pay, if a worker wants equal pay, regardless of their gender. They must work harder to achieve it, it is something that is to be earned and granted by legislative action. Overall my assessment is neutral.

Rapture City

- In the underwater city, two roles have emerged from the City's ongoing civil war: the City Monitors who defend the peace and the Red Caps who fight against unjust systems. The city's infrastructure is crumbling under its own weight and kinship is snuffed by the paranoia of totalitarianism. Yet the people would be in for a surprise as their virtual overlord have died many years ago as the oppression continues under his name...
- Not an 1-1 exact replica of Bioshock lore and Rapture City. Only the city's atmosphere and setting is maintained.
