I mean, we can actually create a mathematical definition for evolution in terms of the evolutionary algorithm and then write code to deal with abstract instances of evolution, which basically equates to mathematical proof that evolution works. All that remains is to show that biological systems replicate in such a way as to satisfy the minimal criteria required for evolution to apply to them, something which has already been adequately shown time and again. At this point, we've pretty much proven that not only can evolution happen, it pretty much must happen since it's basically impossible to prevent it from happening.

It always bothers me when people pay only attention to the singer of a band and act as if nobody else in the band exists despite the fact there's a bunch of music being played that the singing is done over Cough everything with Mike Patton cough

Also, I always find myself mentioning the composer of soundtracks and what soundtrack it is I'm listening to to give credit to who deserves it. Just mentioning the name of the composer without mentioning the soundtrack isn't that useful.
