Good choice.

They Rot, Without God.

good band if a bit depressing, wish they'd put out another LP as i've spun this one to the point where it gets a bit dull sometimes Depressing=Good in my books a lot of times ☐ Some of my all-time favorite songs aren't exactly cheery.

Jonsi and Alex-Happiness.

Like this song for a start. Don't be fooled by the name! I think it's pretty much implying that, ultimately, in the end, everyone is sad at least part of the time, even if they seem to be happy. Heck, I hear about people committing suicide, and their buddies are like "He was perfectly happy yesterday!". That's just them covering up their true feelings. Hell, I do that sometimes. Covering up my sadness with fake happiness. It's just what people do. THAT'S what I ultimately think the songs about.

I can appreciate a good sad song or two, I just don't like to think about dying and stuff, which is unfortunately what a lot of doom metal is about :v

we, unlike the bourgeoisie, have nothing to lose and therefore our expression will be the only honest one, our words will be the only challenging ones and our art will be the one revolutionary expression. We need new noise and new voices and new canvases to become something more than the last poets of a useless generation.

The one I was just listening to was an instrumental song, no lyrics. But yeah, a lot of sad songs are about dying. Not all. I think one Jonsi song that's kinda sad is about destruction or something. It's funny though, because he has happy cheerful songs on that same album, with positive lyrics.

Okay, part of the song sounds like it's about destruction anyway. Likely human destruction.

This songs definitely dark, but awesome....and not on any official album by him. Though I think the 4 songs not on his album are on the "Go Live" DVD.

Pretty good actually!

Probably my favorite Alice in Chains song. Alice in Chains are probably over all my favorite Grunge band (at least of the ones I've heard and the ones from the Seattle area). Being in Washington though, all the 90's Grunge bands get way over played.

Listening to random music from a film I'm watching, Janie Jones. Wanted to watch a movie but everything I could think of that I wanted to see wasn't on instant play on Netflix, so I grabbed a random movie with Abigail Breslin in it, because I've never actually seen her in a movie before but hear her name a decent amount. It's a very musical movie after all, pretty much that being the center of the movie, so it makes sense why I would be listening to music from it

I think I still prefer Nirvana but Dirt is the only AiC album I've heard, I liked it. I actually got it because I heard a song from it in a game I was playing.

The Lake Departed, O'Death.

it's "gothic country" apparently. It's pretty good, like bleak folk music.
