Hunting a animal that is not protected

It depends on where it is done. Hunting can only take place in areas designated for hunting, outside whereof it is a fineable offence. It may also touch upon the illegal possession of a weapon outside of a hunting area where it is allowed, which carries prison time.

Citizens are legally allowed to beat anyone who does that without consequence until they are removed or remove themselves from the area. It's not technically illegal, but it's also disgusting, unhealthy, and just plain rude to do, so no one will defend that without getting their ass handed to them.

If you actually managed to get to the point where you have raped (past tense) another Revenancy human, you have already proven yourself to be a massive threat, as the security systems in place to keep this from happening are pretty swole even by Revenancy standards. field Orchestrators would be dispatched to your position and would deal with you using extreme prejudice.
