They are essentially a Utopia with some problems. Which makes it not a Utopia, but I suppose it is as close as it can get.

They do not practice gun control, have free media and have a large nuclear stockpile.

The country has a GDP of ~$0.9 billion, which translates to $50,166 per capita, the 13th highest. It has a "high" HDI as well, though I'm not entirely sure how that's relevant to economy.

Cosmicium military doctrine dictates that the number one invasion objective is to capture as much as possible, while combining an assorted arsenal of chemical weapons, emp's, missiles built like russian nesting dolls, drones and relentless artillery. Neat-o!

"Somewhere far away, in the distant dunes that rest silhouetted far beyond the ethereal horizons of good and evil, Convallaria has emerged as a technocratic dreamscape of shimmering ambitions and passionate indulgence. A pioneering realm of unbridled industrial sprawl and paranoid black-market underworlds centered around three things: champagne, wealth, and vigorous McCarthyism..."

They are one of the first technocratic states in the land, and their way of governance has paved the road to a host of advancements that pulled them far ahead of everyone else.

They're a theocracy with some rabble-rousing student movements!

Edit: after finding out their leader is a fascist who's unhappy with his current power level, I don't blame those students.

Around the 1900s, massive deforestation occurred in order to build new residential areas in Aroni. However, this massive deforestation has lead to the government taking more interest in preserving the environment. They've also focused more on renewable energy such as hydro power, instead of nuclear power.

Many toxic plants are purple, and he likes the color purple.

And he considers recombining genetic code to produce higher toxicity to be every bit as much gardening as deadheading.

They seem to be a highly utopian community of humans that took shape after an ecological apocalypse, with no apparent form of hierarchy at all. There are no legal or social rules besides the experience of life to the fullest and the development of oneself as a human being.

The revolution that led to the independence of Anurial was known as the Red Arm Rebellion, probably for red armbands or something, that was a response to the lack of progress due to the Mediterra Spring protests similar to the Arab Spring.
