More boring psychedelic rock than I remember. Not bad, though, but there's other kinds of psychedelic music I prefer.

Ozric Tentacles-The Eternal Wheel

This band has a gazillion albums. Decided I didn't really feel like going through every single one of them, because I hear they really don't fluctuate much through their albums so I'd probably get bored out of my mind by space rock/progressive rock/psychedelic rock by then, and figured I could be using those hours and hours (Like 16) of music time on other, more exciting musical projects instead. Sticking with the one album I listened to all the way through previously.

Might pop in another one of theirs here and there, but I still have other musical priorities overall.
