I mean, we can actually create a mathematical definition for evolution in terms of the evolutionary algorithm and then write code to deal with abstract instances of evolution, which basically equates to mathematical proof that evolution works. All that remains is to show that biological systems replicate in such a way as to satisfy the minimal criteria required for evolution to apply to them, something which has already been adequately shown time and again. At this point, we've pretty much proven that not only can evolution happen, it pretty much must happen since it's basically impossible to prevent it from happening.

Esparmuran is sparsely-populated, freezing wasteland north of the Commonwealth of Crowns. If you like hockey, dog-sledding and clubbing seals, you've come to the right place!

Lead by our Prime Minister, Mr. Jim Oullie, a jolly old man who has no time for your shenanigans.

Hera-Wings

I mainly like Hera for her lyric writing, and I'm not one that typically pays attention to lyrics. She sings about various different things instead of just stereotypical love songs, break ups, and so on. And even when she does that, she sings it in a more creative way, like

"The cat has more respect for the bird then I do for you"

This particular song is pretty much about pet ownership, and throwing wild animals into zoos. Like "Why do we cage the things we love the most?", "I could of reached for heaven, said the snowy owl. But they clipped my wings and kept me on the ground", "What's the use of wings if you can't fly?", "I could of ran forever, said the pony. But they bridled me and made me go their way", "I could of found adventure, said the angel fish. Now my my worlds so small there's nowhere left to go", "I could of ruled a kingdom, roared the lion. Now the land inside my head is all I know", "If you give your love its freedom it may stay a while. If it leaves you it was never yours to own"
