Well it depends on what you do. If you simply just make a goofy face and nothing much more, then you could get a few months re-education for disrupting the national broadcast which would be perceived as low-level sabotage. If you do something like salute to fascism and shout pro-Miraguan slogans, or expose private parts, then you're pretty much guaranteed death penalty without question. That's if the revolutionary guards don't find you first and beat you to death before your scheduled firing squad date expect a nice 1 year for trespassing and performing surgery without a license. If you did, you could be charged for up to 5 years in prison for planting deadly weapon in someone. Coercing them will result in the destruction of the device and a max 20 years in prison for the defendant. Blowing them up into spaghetti will be charged under first degree murder and could land you in prison for life.

Medical malpractice or non-injuring bodily mutilation of a live person: up to 5 or 10 years, depending on which someone is charged with. Attempted murder of multiple persons by explosive device: up to 25 years per person-estimate, based on crowd densities. Unlawful use of a deadly weapon: 3 years

3 months in jail for unjustified assault followed by a month of community service. Just because our president is the "big guy" in charge does not mean that he's any different than his fellow Texans, so doin' anything to him will land you the same crime as doing so to a normal person.
