Listening to the end of Fellowship of the Rings. Going to see the Hobbit today (my first time to a cinema since Dark Knight, and my first 3D feature film :-), and thought I'd brush up a bit.

You make that sound surprising

Unless you meant the first one.

My favorite 3D movies were Avatar, because of the awesome world the 3D created, and Coraline, which was probably my favorite use of 3D in a different sense where it's not so much creating a world, but is totally just awesomely done.

The only reason I went to the theater....2 times recently (Argo and Looper) is because I was on vacation, and my grandpa took me. I rarely ever see movies in theaters anymore. The last movie I saw in theaters before that was probably Harry Potter 7 part 2. Mostly because the majority of movies I don't find that interesting to watch, especially in theaters. I'm more of a gamer, and I tend to think games are now having better soundtracks, plus better stories.

I mentioned 'soundtracks', what I just said is music related!
