"Ooooooooookay... um... so this guy manages the ignominious feat of demonstrating every possible flaw in the monarchic framework of government. Here's a guy who's not just a dick to his fellow man and also the ladies-- somebody has some suppressed mommy issues, unless I miss my guess--but he's actually fucking nuts. I mean, it's only healthy for my kind to have that many voices in one's head. He wastes his resources on dreams of empire, so one can most assuredly tell that he's not paying enough attention to his own strengths. The leader who knows neither himself nor his enemy is doomed to nothing but failure. Their country can do much better, and I very much encourage it to rectify the ongoing mistake that is this guy." -KalShazzar

Carl's Mood: Professional

"Grand duke? What a grand title! I mean I certainly can't compete in coolness when it comes to a moniker that powerful. Here's a few initial things I notice here: he's religiously devout, sometimes to the point where he's willing to risk his life for said beliefs, he's militaristically motivated, and is blatantly willing to incite large scale sacrifices in the pursuit of national defense, and he has an affinity for classical literature and philosophy, most likely as a result of his messed up childhood."

"I don't find anything inherently wrong with Walter's faith, in fact, I think his catholic beliefs have instilled a palpable sense of stoicism with regards to his rule, but I'm a little concerned with his dedication to evangelical fundamentalism. A church-sanctioned mission in Sri Lanka sounds harmless enough, but hell, I've seen Book of Mormon, and I've read enough stories featuring charismatic propagandists in school to know that these sorts of humanitarian projects can go south, real fast, and so I hope he's covering all his bases, er, morality-wise."

"When you get down to brass tacks, Walter had an unimaginably tragic childhood, and I think it contributed a great deal to his anti-defensive-defense techniques. There's no doubt he's a heck of a leader in the battlefield, a strategist at heart, but I just hope he continues to grasp the stakes at play, and that he never forgets that it's human lives on the line and not numbers. Make no mistake, that's not a Walter-centric cautionary platitude, I think that all of us as leaders can lose touch with the importance of ground-level politics, but given Walter's patriotic idealism, I hope for everyone's sake he keeps in touch with his own."

Godular: "The man who finds the truth on the blade's edge. Bit of a mouthful, yes, but a potent one, so I'll just stick with 'Kal'Shazzar' for now. You know, I don't want to start off on an unnecessary tangent, but I actually see a bit of myself in Kal'Shazzar. Him and I? We're problem solvers through and through, although his manner of conduct is a little more, er, efficient than mine. I don't want to say ruthless, but that's essentially what he is. His heart is in the right place, but his professional ethics are flawed, and naturally, I have trouble trusting anyone who sacrifices one for the other. I'll admit though, that Ascension experiment is pretty damn interesting, despite the obvious moral dilemmas associated with it. Kal'Shazzar's position may be more ceremonial than e facto, but if you ask me, that's the best structure for his rule, since he's a true and unequivocal management consultant at heart."

OOC: San Horo is a radical Maoist so prepare for a highly questionable rant

"If only there were more people like you, competent but mostly caring, then we didn't need to copy another country's thing called 'cultural revolution.' Anyway being supportive and talking to you employees is always a good thing, viewing them as comrade in arms... umm... comrades in business and even working more than your employe...."

-Inogo Estima

"You capitalist, imperialist, exploiter of the working class! People like you are the reason why we need a second cultural revolution!"

-San Horo

"Hold up, San, admittedly he is a bit hostile to unions which I agree is a bad thing but I don't think this guy deserves an elephant stomping."

-Inogo Estima

"He crushes the working class, he is slowly progressing into late-stage capitalism and that is either one step closer into fascism or a workers revolution to crush the bourgeoisie like him! He is delaying the inevitable collapse of capitalism by trying to make it 'ethical.' There is no such thing as ethical capitalism, even with his low prices and pretending to be nice in front of the workers and hey, even your Market Socialism Inogo will either slide back to capitalism or into a workers revolution guided by Marxism-Leninism-Maoism. Read Das Kapital, the Communist Manifesto and the Quotations from Chairman Mao before replying to me, capitalist! and I say that to both you Inogo and to you Carl! Glory to the Sherechian Red Guards! Workers of the world unite!"

Estima is a honorable warrior, who fought for such causes as the freedom of his people, by any means- while we might disagree about certain social aspects of the society as well as, generally, about democracy and autocracy, we neither the less share more or less similarities between ourselves to allow at least peaceful communications. That is, of course, if he doesn't wish for us to fight- that would be really honorable, but, no deadly weapons, please- for now.

"So, this woman's name is Alexandria, yes? Ah, sounds very much like both my daughter and granddaughter. Anyhow, as a so-called Queen, or a 'Crown Dictator' for that matter, this Alexandria definitely comes off as a bad one, judging by her rather despotic approach to it. Nevertheless, her service in her country's army does deserve some commendation, along with her rather open approach to her own sexuality. I guess boldness isn't necessarily a bad thing isn't it?"

"Ugh.. monarchy. Tell me why do those fancy bunch still exist? I'm not even going to go too far, lest I'll breath fire. But I'm not the one to throw down childish insult without backgrounds so here we go. In my judgement, I saw none from the Kings and Queens of this realm, any significant light that serve as a material of my commendation. However, this one seems to be a unique case. They have shown quite the hate towards racial supremacist ideologies, and have shown quite the benevolence towards the people. This amuses me personally, but this won't change my stance against monarchy. Not that it matters in this case."

Kind Sir, your logic is self-contradictory: you claim that an utopian society can indeed exist, yet, to explain why it is indeed utopian, you twist and change the definition of it so that it would better fit your interests. You claim the need to care for everyone and everything, yet provide no reasoning why the lowest of the society, such as criminals and traitors, deserve as much as those who put their lives on the line. I could not every agree to nearly anything you've said or done and, honestly, believe that challenging you to a duel would be a disgrace to me, both as a Marine and as a royal.

Certainly a.... peculiar woman.... a bit odd for an adopted child to become ruler, most monarchies I know of would retch at the idea. Taking more and more control over the economy is rather odd, economies thrive without state control. Increasing ties with ancient nations, Russia, and China. Which iteration, exactly? the Republic of Russia and Republic of China were both pre-unification nations that were good. Unless, their variants of the two are different. Having your parents killed in a nuclear strike is rather awful, but your adoptive mother was kind to adopt you, I would say.

A distaste for democracy is something I cannot stand behind, democracy is important. Perhaps some day, Miss Alexandria will wise up to democracy but this I doubt, personally.

"Germany! A beautiful nation of a beautiful people with 80 million people has been renewed and has risen anew, under a new reinvigorated government led by beautiful and cute twin sisters named Sylvia and Julienne Dellamorte! Our Feyris catgirl diplomats and ambassadors to Germany only had praise and beautiful and colorful words about Sylvia and Julienne Dellamorte! Both about their strong leadership that has sparked a great nation anew, and both about their beauty, charm and adorable character!

They tell of their childlike demeanor, but perhaps this is only a strong fiery passion brought by the wonders of youth! Sylvia and Julienne Dellamorte spend all their day playing dollhouses and plushies with tea and sweets, but deep within we know of a mature and old wisdom within their heart!

We thank Sylvia and Julienne Dellamorte for their great feat of labor in purging the world of the brown fascist plague. Our comrades in the Soviet Red Army has shed so much blood and fought fighting against the German

Could you actually make a post about Onox himself? Most of what you wrote has nothing to do with him as an actual character.

Kaiser Hannes III Romilda

He is a friend who always puts his best foot forward. Sometimes that can be hard to do when everyone is watching. In my experience, he always keeps his self-assurance no matter the situation. He is a good friend and I wish him all the best of success in his career in politics.

Tell me Mr. Kaiser man how can your hobby be radio, do you listen to the radio or do you repair the radio because you cannot hobby a radio that is impossible and dare i might say a lie and i hate liars. Also how can you be a Kaiser Mr. Kaiser man if you never where in the army, last time i checked the requirement for being a Kaiser is to serve in the army and you were rejected so much for being the "fittest men in Wochaystein" when you cant even join the army. You are a insult to all the Kaisers in the world and i hope your country gets dragged to a World war.

-Ummm, he... hello, k-k-kind sir? You... You... Well, you're a good t-tank c-commander, of course... *sweats*... I mean, t-taking 11 t-tanks alone is a h-honorable thing t-to d-do, I guess..? But, please, don't eat me alive!

OOC: AAAAND I've reacted to the wrong character. My bad, typing...

What have we here- an autocratic ruler, just like me, willing to go as far as it takes in order to ensure the survival and wellbeing of his people, something I can agree on which is, without a doubt, quite good. However, about the rest... I wouldn't be so sure, honestly. For some reason instead of cooperating with the captured people and integrating them, at least partially in your cpsociety, so that their work would be mostly effectient, you choose to enslave them and force them to do manual labor... Why the hell would you want to have humans perform manual labor when you have access to all of this new and shiny technology? I mean, seriously, imagine being able to build interstellar spaceships but still using slaves to man mines, talk about setting priorities, goddamnit

Regent of the Zora, Avau

"As of recent, I had perceptively noticed the fact of which his highness, Prince Ralis has indeed been interacting with many an interesting character...

Such a sighting has now indeed been confirmed by the introduction of the Queen of this certain realm of... Laka Strol. By Hylia's light, this place of which this queen resides over most certainly has a complicated name... Excuse me, I would attempt this again. Laka Strolist. Andiler, ms Alexandria. It is truly interesting to myself that such a name for a person is juxtaposed by the complicated name of the realm of which they may rule over.

Nevertheless, I would suppose I may indeed be losing track, for it seems as if you are waiting for I to speak of... Yourself. I shall oblige such a request...

To begin with, I feel it necessary to apologise on your behalf for the... Disastrous first years of your life. I hope that as the days slowly move forward, you may yet find out the names of your true family, and may the goddesses have mercy on your adopted family should such information be purposefully hidden from you... By any means, of whatever comes of such a fact, I must commend your parentage for raising you in the best way they could do so, with the introduction of many educational services such as this... 'Cadet Kindergarten'. I am confused as to what such a service could entail, however I must digress... Much like myself, it seems that mother Lavinia had great aspirations for yourself in wishing for her legacy to continue with you, and as future events would prove, that vision seems to have come true. You had been trained to become a soldier, much like myself so for such a fact, we share similarities...

However, I must claim that I am saddened and dissatisfied by the... Rightfully evil actions of which you had partook in during service as a Guardswoman. For the outside description that seems to have been written for yourself tells of "dozens of warcrimes". Though I may not know the true definition of a war crime, the word crime is poignant enough. What force drove yourself to cast evils in the actions of which you had made? I most certainly hope that the outside description is speaking in hyperbole, however if it is not, then may the light show you the wrongdoings of which you have committed.

Your views on the management of your realm seem to show pragmatism, which is commendable. To strengthen the guardians of your sanctuary, your realm is certainly important, as the protection of your people is paramount. I hope that your realm may not trust the outside world to the point of which it shall become detrimental, for one must be truly vigilant for those who seek to cast evils upon your people.

I must end the description here, for I am certainly needed in many another place. Should we meet again, I sincerely hope that your track record have improved by then, for many of your other qualities are admirable...

I've got a new character out, as you can see... Link to her dispatch is here
