OPINION ON FRANCISCO FRANCO BAHAMONDE, PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

(I refuse to use a machine translator, so I apologize for poor English.) So, Mr. Franco, you are a navy man, yes? To be honest, I already do not like you, but I will explain why later.

I do not understand navies much, and I truly envy the fact that the oceans on your planet are not extremely toxic and corrosive. On my homeworld, when a Tylan tries to go for swim, the chemicals in the ocean strip their bones clean. It is... not a pleasant sight.

Then you were elected to President of your country. Well, you were not elected - you inherited the presidency after your predecessor Kennedy was murdered. This is the part where I do not like you - your apparent belief in... nathakravashtam Chvigasram? I do not know how to say it in English, sorry. It is the belief that liberal republics are eternal and will last forever, and all other governments will die and be subsumed by democracy, because that is how history is supposed to go. This is false, because the liberal democracy Telareth Republic fell by my hand, as I founded my Lihann Empire. You are not very fond of monarchs either, Mr. Franco, to the point that you said "the only good blueblood is a dead blueblood" - for your sake, I hope that you only mean royals and not all us Tylans, lest the Vargeta be wrathful.

Mr. Franco, I can only hope that you survive to see the natural transition of your United States' democracy into an empire - maybe that will shake your faith in a temporary system

"My report on Liha the Great. I don't think we gonna see eye to eye in everything. I mean, why the hell exterminate a tribe?! That's just pointless cruelty. Erasing cultures? No bueno too. But... I never liked that conquered republic either. Despite that "Deus Vult" conquest motivation. Besides, these infrastructure projects seem to be a nice thingy and... Now wait! She taught some tribe to fight, conquered other tribes, and then fought a republic... is that a New Vegas reference? During her tribal stage of story, she was like Caesar from that game, but more benevolent. I disapprove some of her methods, and given why she was exiled, I'll hope she ain't gonna cough at John Walker AI, ha,ha! But still, if she ever wants to work something out with us, why not?

PS. Dudes, remind me not to enjoy the oceans of her homeland. Our's are much more pristine, with no corrosive, toxic shit. Her homewrld has many other things to enjoy."-Shawn Bjornson

"We do not understand why so many organics on Earth call their figure-heads their kings, queens, and emperors when really they are no such thing. There is no shame in admitting that for whatever reason it was decided to strip their former monarchs of all real power. Alexandra here is a prime example of that, the only royal thing she has are titles which do not mean all that much in any society past the age of gunpowder. Personally, we're neutral. We see no reason to feel ill upon someone who really isn't an actual player within the political sphere. As far as we can see the most relevant thing she did was bar some other politician from entering her country after some drama but we doubt such a decision was made without some form of okay from the actual leaders in the United Kingdom. We just cannot muster up the emotion to feel much more than nothing about Alexandra."

Princess-Sovereign of Hyrule, Zelda

"Ah, how seemingly very long indeed it has been since I have last meandered my way into this "Seventh Forum"... Time often deceives, on a higher scale it certainly has proven to be not at all long indeed, however I must say I am truly mentally beset upon by the gears of time churning without end. Safe to say; this place had almost been lost to me until now...

Greetings once again to all who frequent this place! If I may be honest, much has happened to me since I had lasted even attempted to tackle the "Seventh Forum", some realities of which would befuddle even the clearest of

minds, mine
included...
However, I shall not
get into that here.

To focus, I suppose.
A warm greetings
towards you, your
royal highness. Sir
Sandepus
Phlegomæus Etheliscus is your full name, correct? I am glad I will not
encounter the
displeasure of
pronouncing that
towards you or...
Well, anyone in all
honesty! Instead,
the pleasure is just writing it down. I can say for certain
that the Humans I
have encountered
throughout my time
in this place have
usually had longer
names than even
the longest seen in Hyrule. A first name
and little else is the
most common here.
You rule a land
known as Diarcesia,
a place as
mysterious to myself
as I am sure the Hyrulean realm
would prove to
you... Though I
suppose using past
tense; ruled a land
would be more
accurate for you?
Which is slightly
befuddling, your
own description
denotes to me that
you had died in a
year known as "2058"
and yet; if the
author is correct,
you still
communicate here
of all places amidst
the afterlife. * sigh *
I have encountered
stranger things
indeed throughout
my life, however.
Thus, this small note
will suffice for
myself.

Now then, allow me
to delve into your
life, which the author of your
description
certainly made...

Concise, so to speak. Though perhaps I can not be the one to judge, the information I have of myself is not written by my own hand and proves not so in-depth itself. Perhaps one day, I shall commission or rather write a more informative description myself, but alas life keeps me very busy, I am sure as a fellow Sovereign you can relate to that.

You were born to a mother and father who were both in respectful professions as it seems, but what is interesting to me is that there is no mention that they were part of any sort of royalty... For myself, that is not at all the same situation. Hyrule has a rigid structure so to say, if one was not Royalty from birth there would be no hope that they would become one. Though of course, this is for good reason. Goddess Nayru only bestows upon the Triforce of Wisdom to the females of the Hyrulean Royal Family on occasion. Not to overwhelm you with conversation and gossip, but I think you might find it interesting when I say that any member of Hyrulean royalty that is born with that aforementioned Triforce shall always be called "Zelda" and be destined to become future Monarch.

However, back to you. You and your parentage would find you a prestigious form of education and had found yourself enamored with it. I would suppose it may always be a good sign in the early years should the child enjoy their time within such a facility... Most teaching in Hyrule is only done by parents or private facilities, though I have heard that in more technologically inclined realms the prospect of public and additional institutions is absolutely a possibility. Though the description on yourself delves little into your years in Education, to the point of leaving an entire heading of it blank, strangely enough, it seemed successful in preparing you for the future roles life would take you through in time, whether you knew of them personally or not at the time. I suppose a vested appreciation for the institution is well due? Or rather, institutions as you seemed to have been able to secure a position in tertiary education as well.

And before you became Monarch, somehow wooing the previous one enough with what I assume to be a personal relationship with addition to your own achievements and talents to be named his successor instead of handing over control to a son or daughter of his, unless of course there was none in which case the possibility makes more sense; you went to gain a prestigious Governmental Position. Much as the author on your description has done, I can not comment much on that stage of your life.

And even as monarch there is little to talk about, which is unfortunate...

Perhaps there is a reason as to why more of your; most likely exciting life is not talked about? Let us hope the reason is benign. Unlike your citizenry, I honestly can not bring myself to talk about the handling of this so called "New Randomican Crisis" for I can not find out about the context, the events or the response you and your governmental persons in their positions' reactions to it all, however I sincerely hope it ended well enough.

Ah, but I can find myself comment about your seemingly constant personal struggle of reaching out to other people... Though your reason is different for my own. I can surely sympathise with your wishes to simply find yourself not so alone, which considering the little elaborated on your life and the way it progressed actually surprised me somewhat. Rather, for me it is moreso the simple goal of trying to understand, empathise and intermingle with the more common folk... How about I switch up the rest of my comments in a more casual fashion now, eh? Maybe just to show off that I've been making a little progress.

I do hope you've actually found a way to resolve that, Sandepus. It's not at all fun to feel alone. I don't feel it that much myself, I actually find a lot of comfort in just being in my own presence, and I'm often not struck by loneliness for that reason. But when I am, it does feel real bad, you know? But honestly? I couldn't really continue to talk about stuff further without sounding like I'm going around in circles, Sandepus. I hope that's not offensive to say, it's just that if I tried it'd just get really repetitive quickly. So, I'll try to conclude here. Your Royal Highness, you seem like an admirable figure, if a tinsy tiny bit shrouded in mystery for me, but I don't think that's any fault of yourself. You seem quite Level-Headed, mature and probably most importantly, Human and down to earth. I would say just keep doing what you're doing during your reign, but as you seem to be communicating from the afterlife, you don't rule this Diarcesia anymore.

So, see you some other time, I suppose! That's my conclusion made. Please take care of your immortal soul."

"The fact that Princess Zelda seems like a person of young age, and to see her rule an entire nation is truly astonishing and impressive. From what I've read from the documents of the Hyrulean Princessdom, the young Princess seems to be a wise and benevolent ruler of the nation and seems to hold some kind of magical power or some sorts. She also has gone through a lot in her reign as the Princess-Sovereign of Hyrule from what I have read in these documents, having had to deal with an invasion of a dark and evil force and having had witnessed invaders barge into her home and take her under their custody as their prisoner. I was shocked when I read that she is very good at wielding a bow, but maybe that was one of the reasons why I admire and respect her in the first place. She is one of the very few people I utterly respect, the others being Napoleon Bonaparte and the Duke of Wellington themselves. Other than that, I wish her the best of lucks in her reign as the Princess-Sovereign of the Hyrulean Princessdom."

ANDOUR ETERNAL!

A fictional nation situated in an archipelago in between the British Isles and Scandinavia set in the Napoleonic Era, the Kingdom of Andour is a society that exists for a single purpose. Spurred on by hatred of their neighbors and an incessant need to satisfy their beliefs, the independent villages and cities from the freezing blizzards of Vaspiria to the sub-arctic alpine fjords of Fjordland united under a High King. The High King now leads a nation destined to protect the people of the Andouran Isles and to cleanse Europe of its malfeasance.

"Karl Joseph Ahlgrim the first... I read that one too. As far as I know, he took his studies and duties seriously from a very young age. Studyin mathematics, arts, culture, plus many other things. I wonder, how exactly poetry or music studies can help one to rule better? Nevermind. He learned and this clearly shows. Rather wise choice to enable the people to be represented in government, as this lets the people to get representation and it reduces unrest. And to give more self-rule ability to the regions, for this helps to manage things better and makes country more far adaptable to rapid changes. Plus... if something goes bad, people are more likely to blame the head of the region, rather than the Crown. Still depends on the failing, though... Still, It's likely, that the first years of his rules were calm thanks to his debut decisions. And this probably also helped to win the war against Prussia. I don't know, how exactly did he win the war but this was epic! I also don't know much about him, but this "Cleanse Europe" doesn't inspire lots of trust in me. Now, where did I stop? Oh, right! Still new to this opinion thing, and who do we have now here. An American called George Wallace Jr. So apparently you were a liberal back in pre-war Alabama and were against "Jim Crow" laws. I'm a bit unfamiliar with what they are, but I guess these are racist laws if the context clues says anything. You were also part in the air force and fought against Japan in WW2, because of that your air got wounded. I hope that you can still hear well. But anyways, you seem to be anti-racist. Calling for "Integration now, integration tomorrow, integration forever." Either you are pretty radical for your time, or you are just an opportunist. Well as long as you are doing good things. We should have more people like you here. Maybe we can even send you to the Remnant, because I hear that they do pretty horrible stuff to mutants. Although maybe Burgundy would be a better place. They might see wastelanders as "savages who need to be civilized" but at least they don't shoot any mutant on spot. Probably the best place for a guy like you to show up is probably in the southern republics of this country, because there newly integrated wastelanders are pretty often looked down on.

Letter to Dear "Comrade" San Horo By Comrade High Princess Reissechi Yuri

San Horo, it has been six months since our Comrade Catgirls from the National Weijyahowr of Faeries have visited your delegation in Sherechia with recommendations for liquidations. Yet, you San Horo had not followed up with these liquidations and recommendations from the revolutionary vanguard and had in fact, ignored all of them!

While we were busy waging a revolution and consolidating the People's Democratic Dictatorship in Feyrisshire, you were also waging a revolution of your own in Sherechia! Including lots of revolutionary activities such as, buying luxury cars, buying a big mansion, and pilfering the donations made by proletarian and petty-bourgeoisie followers to noble causes, such as buying a Playstation 5! Oh, how "revolutionary" is the Maoist revolution in Sherechia!

We have long been asking you along with our Comrade Catgirls from Feyrisshire that the time for People's War in Sherechia is now ripe! We are disappointed with the lack of revolutionary enthusiasm and good political economy from our comrades in Sherechia! We have long asked our comrades in Sherechia about the class structure in Sherechia? How many proletariat are there? How many petty-bourgeoisie are there? How many bourgeoisie? Yet no one in Sherechia seems to have any answers and are woefully ignorant!

Examine the material conditions in Sherechia and ignore your methods at bourgeoisie electoralism, or combine them with the more powerful struggle of People's War! As Mao Zedong said: "Political power comes from the barrel of a gun!" How can the Sherechian proletariat have political power, if they do not have a People's Army of their own! That is why, it is very important, to study the material conditions in your country first before foolishly swimming and diving into the river of bourgeoisie electoralism! The Catgirls of Feyrisshire have the state power, have the support of the Feyris Catgirl proletariat!, yet all the comrades in Sherechia are too cowardly, or too lazy to start a People's War!

San Horo, you are a fool, and what would be your next "revolutionary" venture will be? Would you buy another BMW or Cadillac car to add to your Toyota Alphard! Would you add another mansion! Would you have perhaps Japanese or Korean concubines of your own! Then nothing will come of the revolution in Sherechia with these shameless opportunism and bourgeois inclinations!

"The true enemy is still hiding in the shadows."

1986, Yuri's Epsilon Army is close to taking over the world, and a paramilitary organization tries to hold what's still free from his control.

That Sabre girl seems interesting... her head was in the right place but why lift the ban on automatic weapons? Though it is nice to find a fellow socialist... not to sure i like how she see monarchs though as I am a monarch. I am also not sure if I like her response to terrorist groups sure some are bad but some aren't then again I grew up with a father who supported "A World With No Boundaries". All that aside I respect her and I feel maybe we could one day friends if she wasn't opposed to certain things.
