Awfully foolhardy, aren't we? I'm not exactly the same brand of a soldier as you were but regardless, I don't care how one does it. I care about the results. I find it rather frightening if I put myself in your shoes. To have the courage and foresight to rebuild human civilisation while being bombarded with nuclear weapons? I can respect that kind of leadership.

Not to be too brash but I am still of the opinion that being a great soldier and military commander does not equal being a great civil ruler. You've done well but it's about time you learn that your people need a say in how they are ruled, more so than they currently are."

What skills do you even have that justify your rise to power? Being daddy's little sycophant?

You're no leader and don't ask me to read your manifesto. If you can't sum up your ideology in a few sentences, then I can probably shit better ideologies! Get the fuck out of here with your silver-lined lies and populist rhetoric. You're not fooling anyone"

Oswald's Status: Will build more railways after the war with the Russy Federation

"It should not come as a surprise when a leader such as Turaniski takes advantage of a faulty constitution to suit his agenda, and yet, to see him wage one unsuccessful after another is enough to strengthen my conviction that even the world's major socialist titans can be defeated and then humiliated for their inadequate wartime achievements, and in the case of South Reinkalistan under the 'Prime Comissar', lack of decisive action in the wars they've waged against their northernmost neighbour. The more Turaniski imprisons dissidents, and the more he grows ever proud and arrogant of his position, the slower and yet more painful the death of his country will be."

"When I look upon Clarissa, I see a vision of an ideal future. She is an embodiment of happiness far beyond modern science, but her very existence in this world- or rather, any world- should not be taken lightly. It is an indication that somewhere, humanity has seen it fit to place within one being a cornucopia of pleasant possibilities. Of course, I may only speak of her as I see her and understand her, and that understanding is limited indeed. But of what can be said for certain, there is much approval to be had- though that such a cheerful construct would be granted the weapons of war is, to my mind, unsettling. I am certain that her ideals demand it, even if she professes pacifism to a great degree. And there is no shame in that, no criticism I have to offer. I have fought for my ideals also, as have all those seek an ideal future. There is an air of the enigmatic to her, of that which may never be known, and I find that as enticing as I find it saddening. If all that technology that composes her, enhances her, if all that knowledge were in my own hands...the possibilities would be remarkable. But as the vanguard of progress, we must recognise what is within our limits to achieve, and what would be nothing more than a mark of hubris. I believe that concludes my discourse on Clarissa."

Godulan Puppet #2, RPing as technologically advanced tribal society founded by mongols and vikings (and later with multiple other Asian and Native American cultures) motivated by an intrinsic devotion to the spirit of competition. They'll walk softly, talk softly, and make soothing noises as they stab you in the back and take your stuff... unless you're another Caleshan, whereupon they'll only stab you in the back figuratively!

Used NS stats: Population. That's it. Anything else not stated in the factbooks is not used.

"A technologically advanced pirate? That's certainly interesting. I don't really have a favorable opinion on pirates, however. Some of them have their good qualities, but they all represent lawlessness, and some of the worst ones just outright resemble terrorists. Fortunately, she doesn't seem to be at the stage yet. Overall, I would commend her for being brave enough to lead from the front rather than sitting back. I'm very neutral about her for right now."

"All that pain and suffering. All the sweat and toil. All the blood spent by forces that rightfully wanted to bring down a genocidal, fascist regime that caused nothing but pain and suffering, turning entire fronts into pure hell all so they could fulfil lofty goals that would require a foundation of skulls!"

You're telling me that you self-righteous little brats denied justice from hammering down on the Nazis? And what? You simply disbanded or recreated the most reprehensible political party in your nation's history? The one responsible for the wholesale slaughter of millions? Gave them a little slap on the wrist and let the death of millions of civilians go unavenged? I might be no proponent of their ideology but you dare to frame the Allies as bloodthirsty barbarians at the gates?

I would glass your fatherland ten times just for that insulting tragedy of a 'victory'. See what happens to your precious fatherland when you allow such crimes to go unanswered and not even try to flush out the mad men who were responsible for this war! This is why we don't place power in the hands of little girls!

I mean, you have definitely met the other Valentians, or even Holly, but not me specifically. I am Valentijn, leader of this fine nation, ha hah! First things first, I just want to say and preface how absolutely I am positive towards you. Me and my wife, Clarissa, are like big fans of you and the rest of Bloodshade, and hell, we have even attended various functions and parties together! I have also been reading your dossier, and I love the fact that your favorite place is a garden! I too love gardens! Though ones that are larger, because there comes a time when my size gets prohibitive. [He hands over an extremely oversized box of chocolates] Valentian delicacy and desserts! I hope you will accept this as a gift from us! Try not to eat too many of them though, I mean, unless you are immune to diabetes like us!
