The civil wars eventually descend into IC and OOC posts that are confusing to follow.

TBH I simply ignore most OOC posts. Also civil wars easily present fast paced although low quality action.

It's a shame, because in theory civil wars provide a lot of opportunity to do more low key, guerilla/counterinsurgency conflict and really shake things up on your home turf - a really well RPed Syria/Yugoslavia esque one could be quite interesting. I'd guess they're really popular among summerposters because 1) A Civil War allows you to easily start an II conflict without needing to plan things out with others beforehand and 2) it allows you to curbstomp an intentionally incompetent rebel faction on your home turf.

Bonus points if these rebel faction is a strawman version of the opposite of the summerposter's ideology. Also if the rebels are incompetent and gets easily curbstomped, then is it even a civil war.

May as well call it a "minor riot" at that point.

I usually RP a well-familiarized cast of characters sometimes introducing supportive cast. Basically civil wars provide lots of area for roleplaying small military units like squadrons, platoons, etc.

The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions, including sales, purchases, and expenses. It emphasizes the need for a systematic approach to record-keeping, such as using a ledger or accounting software, to ensure that all financial data is properly documented and organized.

The second part of the document focuses on the importance of regular financial reviews and analysis. It highlights the need to monitor cash flow, profitability, and overall financial performance on a consistent basis. This involves comparing actual results against budgeted figures and identifying areas for improvement or adjustment.

The third part of the document addresses the importance of maintaining accurate financial statements, including the balance sheet, income statement, and cash flow statement. It stresses the need for transparency and accuracy in these statements, as they provide a clear picture of the company's financial health and position.

The fourth part of the document discusses the importance of effective budgeting and financial planning. It emphasizes the need to set realistic financial goals and develop a detailed budget that outlines expected income, expenses, and cash flow for a given period. This helps in making informed decisions and managing the company's finances proactively.

The fifth part of the document highlights the importance of maintaining accurate records of assets and liabilities. It stresses the need to properly value and track all assets, including inventory, equipment, and real estate, as well as all liabilities, such as loans and accounts payable. This ensures that the company's financial statements accurately reflect its true financial position.

The sixth part of the document discusses the importance of effective tax management. It emphasizes the need to understand applicable tax laws and regulations, and to implement strategies to minimize tax liability while remaining compliant. This involves keeping accurate records of taxable income and expenses, and consulting with a tax professional for guidance.

The seventh part of the document addresses the importance of maintaining accurate records of payroll and employee compensation. It stresses the need to properly calculate and withhold taxes, and to maintain accurate records of all payroll transactions, including wages, benefits, and deductions. This ensures compliance with labor laws and accurate financial reporting.

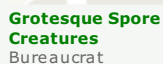

The eighth part of the document discusses the importance of effective financial communication and reporting. It emphasizes the need to provide clear and concise financial information to stakeholders, including management, investors, and creditors. This involves preparing regular financial reports and maintaining open communication channels for discussing financial performance and plans.

The ninth part of the document highlights the importance of maintaining accurate records of all financial transactions and documents. It stresses the need to properly store and organize all financial records, including invoices, receipts, and contracts, to ensure they are easily accessible and retrievable when needed. This helps in maintaining accurate financial data and supporting the company's financial reporting.

The tenth part of the document discusses the importance of effective financial risk management. It emphasizes the need to identify and assess potential financial risks, such as market fluctuations, credit risk, and operational risk, and to develop strategies to mitigate these risks. This involves monitoring the company's financial position and taking proactive measures to protect its assets and ensure its long-term financial stability.

The eleventh part of the document addresses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all financial transactions and documents. It stresses the need to properly store and organize all financial records, including invoices, receipts, and contracts, to ensure they are easily accessible and retrievable when needed. This helps in maintaining accurate financial data and supporting the company's financial reporting.

Imagine having an entire company killed or captured because your commanders refused to at least make sure that they weren't gonna fall off a cliff or something.

That's Summerposter logic

Still looking for wife roleplays can be done the right way (TFF's Red String of Fate is a perfect example), however most of the time it's just fap fodder TBH. Like I do like to RP romance from time to time, but I try to focus on the emotional part of the thing, about the challenges characters overcome together and in their relationship, not this shit.

A lot of Marriage RPs seem to be all made by the same guy, and I can confirm

It is entirely for sexual fulfillment disguised as IC canon. My man got DEATED and banned for it even.

I do love that most/all of the marriage RPs are for princes and princesses. I mean, you can definitely try doing a Tinder here, while still following the PG-13 rule. Don't quote me on this, though!

A MT blind date between a recently inaugurated President and a Prime Minister of two different countries, come on.

Princes and princesses had practical reasons, because the heir would be the heir of BOTH countries/regions. Nowadays there's less of a reason to inbreed. Of course, I'm always interested in seeing Putin and Biden going on a blind date, adopting a child, and reestablish the Kingdom of Rusamerica.
