"After her explanation of the goals she has and what she strives to accomplish. I must say that I am still not supportive of her ultimate goal. It may sound noble, but it also sounds similar to what the Templars and Freemasons seek to create. She wishes to go about doing it peacefully but then why support factions that people of a nation are against. For example your Afghan accomplice who supports the Afghan Communist, who betrayed their people and sold the honor of their women to the Russians, there was a reason why men like Ahmad Shah Massoud rose up against the communists. Even I seek unity, but I don't ever seek to create a utopia. For this I stand neutral"

I don't like him at all; a man who is all smiles and caring about people but he's showing off his body on social media like it's all perfect and great? That's downright repugnant."

"I agree with what this ambiguously-named Emperor is saying... being a Muhammadian heretic yet proclaiming yourself as a higher being by engaging in the sin of pride is an insult worthy of a duel in itself. However, what I cannot agree with is lowering himself to that of an absolute slob by eating from commoner garbage, as well as performing mass murder and establishing a heretical cult, which defies the very word of the Lord. One of the Ten Commandments in itself is 'Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image', which would make him a proud committer of sin."

The Knights of Mare Nostrum are an order formed in 1189 centered around islands in the Mediterranean after the Knights Hospitaller and Templar merged, along with the integration of other knightly orders, serving as a militarized Papal State which utilises what is essentially hyper-militaristic canon law.

"Oh my dear. You're the plaything of higher beings. A puppet. Heavens above, you probably wouldn't understand what I'm talking about. Such a tragic soul.

If I'm being perfectly honest, dear, your naivety is going to cost you your life. I'm sure you feel like a hug is the best kind of medicine but I'm not here to give out false hope. I want to help but I'm afraid that the forces that be won't allow me. It's simply too fun for them. Hell, a few of the deities residing in my home-world are watching you.

Listen to me, you're a good girl but you need to get this into your thick skull of yours. Destiny is cruel and you need to be ready. I gave you my advice. If you want to squander it, be my guest. I won't pity a fool that ignores common sense. Remember that the world will always be cruel to a pure woman such as yourself. You can be kind and strong, Ms. Kasei. You don't have to run around, acting like some sort of cartoon character. You're not a clown. You're an upstanding, strong, responsible lady...or at least, you have the potential to be if you feel like those words don't describe you.

Has your superior, Ennio, ever told you to get a grip of yourself? Look, I don't doubt your skills at pencil pushing but I will say this once last time, drop your cutesy act and get real before your life takes a turn for the worse. Dear heavens above, you truly are clueless about the tragedy that has befallen you and one that is coming soon." - Ambrosia

"Well, would you look at that! You're the type of men that are known to live off of the land and are in tune with nature? Are you not? Apologies if that sounds stereotypical. You strike me as one. You certainly remind me of the Wood Elves but you're definitely not as bloodthirsty as they are. Accursed tree fascists... Oh, don't worry, I was talking about them, not you.

You seem to be a non-confrontational type! One that prefers harmony over discord. Peace and prosperity over endless war. I appreciate your efforts. Believe it or not, your descendants will praise you and as I grow older, I will surely tell them of how great of a man you were. Don't fret, you might live a short life compared to beasts such as myself but humans are a persistent, if iconoclastic, bunch. - Ambrosia

But Evelyn is kept kicking by more than mere cybernetics - she seems to live on hate alone. And that in itself is troubling - hatred can be a powerful motivator, to be sure. But to dedicate oneself to it blinds the individual. I doubt her superiors fully share her convictions - an unaware tool is a far more useful tool, after all. And if they do... then the path down which they are headed as a collective is a dark and muddled one. War cannot be declared on a concept. They would do well to remember that."

She remembered Kofuku running away from whatever was chasing her, and after the formalities were exchanged, Clarissa quickly realised that the little lady might be in extreme distress and was needing a lot of help. She did just that; since Clarissa is around a good 6 meters at that time as she typically is, she took Kofuku by her hand, lifted her up, and carried her, while Clarissa dashed off at a good 2000 km/h. "Hold on tight, my friend!"

After that has happened, and are clearly away from any indication and form of danger around them, they set up shop at somewhere quiet in the fields. There's a little lake right beside them, which Clarissa, after shrinking down to 9 feet, rowed the boat to their new destination. "You always seem to be on the brink of danger, Kofuku! It's been a while since we last meet, you know? I am... so I heard about all these things that have been chasing you, and about your current situation. I can only say that I am sorry to hear that! But don't worry! I am here with you, and you will be safe!" She would give the timid lady a little hug, and soon disembarked from the boat, about to have a little picnic time as aforementioned in the beginning. Just her, her best friend, and a working array of turrets that would blast anything that so much so as stares at them wrongly. "You will be safe here with me, and of course I am also always positive on you! I am sorry that those things are giving you trouble, but with me around? Take that off your mind, and enjoy!" as Clarissa gives her a cute little wink.

Clarissa would have also see that Kofuku has deeper wounds on her body. Perhaps... scars and gashes from whatever fights that she has gotten. She would comment on it, but she chose not to. Sometimes, bringing up a person's scars is the worst thing to trigger a flashback, and Clarissa learned that perhaps a few too many times at this point.

And just then, a mysterious man by the name of "The Reverend" would come and approach Clarissa from her back. Somehow, the turrets never fire back, perhaps knowing that the man has no such intention of hostility. He seems neutral at worst, but simply wants to talk to her at best. Clarissa excused herself from Kofuku and turned around to see a man who... she don't really know. The name of the nation would have been obvious, but searching deeper down in their "factbooks" reveal... nothing much. For all intents and purposes, it was perhaps even not written by the people themselves, and rather a backup, a report from a third party about this civilization lost to time. "Who is this person?" Clarissa thought to herself, wondering if he was here to hurt her, or her friend beside. Perhaps not; otherwise, the guns would have shredded him already.

As a result, Clarissa simply shifted aside a little and greeted the man, "Well hello to you there, haha! I err... I didn't really see you from my back until you approached me, sorry! Is there anything that I can help you with?" Maybe an opinion of sorts, she thought to herself. Most of the people would strangely approach her and asked her on how she feel about them. She thought it was weird, but perhaps it was one of those self-actualization things she kept hearing about. "Hmm, you don't seem to be that bad, from what I have read about you! You seem to be... are you lost, my friend? Maybe I mean that both literally and figuratively? Where are your people? And what happened to yourself? Well, in any case.. I am still positive about you, of course! I heard about you- err I mean... I have read about you and your people, perhaps. You seem to be a bit of a wanderer, and a mysterious person, from what I have read! So... I don't have issues with that, and you seem to be a pretty nice person, so why don't you join us? It will be fun here, I promise!"

She then sent out a bunch of commands to the nearby turrets that she got around as a defensive perimeter. Orders are now not to shoot the man, along with Kofuku, of course.

"He is a brave one that's for sure. His stance against the evil and unjust is very commendable. As a soldier or guardian he very talented but as far as the game of politics and nation building go, I am not too sure of his ability in managing a nation. Overall my opinion of him is positive, he is a great bastion against those seeking to spread corruption"

*"AD-Dog? And a some sort of a mix between a twoleg and an actual dog? Sorry, but it would be better if you stayed away from my clan! I know what those twoleg pets can do when released from their leash at night, or forced to live on their streets - eat cats, that's what it is! Sobs I still remember seeing a cat which was torn by one of them. Although, his tasks sound very interesting, not gonna lie. This so called "Earth" is where all of life is located, right? If so, it seems, that he can actually enjoy the sky and stars by actually being up there, instead of being limited to only the night's sky. And yet I must ask - why you chose this way? You could have easily used your position to become a some sort of a brutal warlord, or eventually ending up being the very thing you swore to destroy, yet you still chose to stay on the side of law, your law... Oh, I know - you are too kind hearted and noble for that. I shall remain suspicious, however."*

"Ah, I stumble in the same twoleg again - hey, at least I have a good memory. I am sure that we both don't really understand each other's tongue well, but I am still going to say, that he is a good leader by taking more power in being in charge of his own clan, and clamping down on those who are scheming against his power in the leadership. However, his devotion to his StarClan is something that irks me a bit - sure, some of its laws and codes are good, and worth keeping, but some are... merely stupid! He has made some of his StarClan codes to actually benefit both of the twoleg types? Yes, that's good, but there's still a long road ahead. It also seems that while he spends a lot for army, he isn't the type to actually show his power off to an another clan. Maybe you are in different situation, but I fairly quickly learned, that there never is a complete peace."

"How cute, a ninja, but enough tease. I wonder how well she truly is amongst her clan, is she the strongest, or does she simply hold more reason that the others are willing to listen to.

I would like to see just how much power she holds, and I'm far more curious of her technique, it all reminds me of Oni. Strength barehanded and just as deadly with a weapon.

You're interesting and I hope to hold more encounters with you."-The first king

"I'm pleased to see our races mending our wounds and coming together to build a bright future that should have happened without the need of a meaningless war to get us here. I hope see the Demon King and Stone realize over time, they are no different from one another, and share more in common with another than originally thought before. Otherwise, my assessment is positive.

Rapture City

- In the underwater city, two roles have emerged from the City's ongoing civil war: the City Monitors who defend the peace and the Red Caps who fight against unjust systems. The city's infrastructure is crumbling under its own weight and kinship is snuffed by the paranoia of totalitarianism. Yet the people would be in for a surprise as their virtual overlord have died many years ago as the oppression continues under his name...
- Not an 1-1 exact replica of Bioshock lore and Rapture City. Only the city's atmosphere and setting is maintained.
