I heard that the developers behind the DLC sent the concept to the Ubisoft bosses (Because the game is made by Ubisoft too, I think), not expecting high praise since it was completely out of the blue concept, but apparently after like the first slide of showing them the concept, they were pretty much like "Yup, do it", and went from there.

I don't think it was a mistake. I almost think the DLC/mini-game is more popular than the main game itself. Shows that weird risks are a good idea.

I thought it was the best April Fools joke ever at first, because they released the webpage on April 1st and such. But there was a lot that seemed like an awful lot of work for an April Fools joke. I'm sure they wanted you to think that on purpose. Glad it wasn't ☐

Manowar - Call to Arms

Touche. Hearts of Iron -Sabaton. But to be fair, I was at least on topic in the first post that didn't explicitly say what I was listening to. ☐ You got me on the second post though.

Well, in a way that game was also related, song was off of it's soundtrack. But still rather far fetched ☐

Meat Loaf - Bat out of Hell

(I'll be honest, Listen on repeat has been playing the same song for the last two hours: Hearts of Iron- Sabaton). I didn't read the whole post. I just saw a bunch about Ubisoft and DLC. Assumed it was meant to be posted in a different thread.

Nope. Was just doing some chatting based off the soundtrack I was flippin' through.

Speaking of flipping through stuff, quickly flipping through the Assassins Creed: Revelations soundtrack. 2 hours and 40 minutes long, and I remember thinking most of it was boring. Especially half of it done by Lorne Balfe. So I really don't feel like listening through the entire thing again...

AC2 and Brotherhood had the best songs IMO. Salvation of Forli was an eargasm.

Surprise! I changed songs. Resist and Bite- Sabaton (it's all about that variety)

Yeah, but I posted a general realm of what I was listening to. I was flipping through the entire 80 song soundtrack quickly, so I didn't really feel the need to post individual songs.

I need to listen to the Assassins Creed 2 one more thoroughly, beyond just in the game. But the Brotherhood one is definitely good. The City of Rome song is one of my favorite soundtrack songs ever.

The Assassins Creed: Revelations one is just kinda boring. Lorne Balfe's section is the definition of generic soundtrack music, but I guess since they're dragging the series on forever, generic fits. Jesper Kyd still manages to make the most interesting songs on the soundtrack, but he's less than half of the soundtrack and even he doesn't save it enough.

Health-Sampa (Max Payne 3 Soundtrack)

Now back to actual soundtracks I want to listen to. Only have 6 soundtracks left to rate that I have listened to before, but didn't rate before because of when I listened to them. 3 of them are Mass Effect soundtracks, which I might plow through somewhat quickly. Then there's the Portal 2 Soundtrack, which is 3 hours long...

Megadeth - Blackmail the Universe

This riff sounds hauntingly similar to Venom's Black Flame (of Satan) released 2 years before.
