Look, I can sympathize when it comes to a downtrodden upbringing with the best of them, but I can't help but find that the merit of this little soap opera rings a little hollow. (Pauses) Jasper Jones. The man of brassy social ideals and corrosive financial paranoia. Jasper represents everything wrong with laissez-faire uber-monopolization. He may be the self-proclaimed 'General Secretary' of this so-called 'Century Bay', but he is by no means an administrator to his people, or by extension his own associates. I've seen it before, and I'm seeing it here, this is a man who would sell his own children to a Bohemian Bordello if it benefitted his own portfolio. He would sabotage his friends without a second thought, and I would never trust a word he said in a million epochs. It's that simple."

I want to see him run Sherechia. And thats kind of the problem here, He doesn't look like a person that has experienced a crisis before. So if one does hit, I doubt on his ability. You are quite healthy for someone who is 70 years old! Although, I do read up that you are not exactly the most normal human that I have ever encountered. It's okay, we Valentians are accepting of everyone, and I mean, look at me too! We totally stick out compared to the rest of the normal human populace around us! So I have read a dossier about you - these things are quite easy to obtain nowadays - I do am really sorry about the personal life bits, particularly the one where you could not have kids with your SO. Adoption still works, so I am happy for that nonetheless! I am sure you did all you can as parents, and perhaps are even better than those parents who are deemed "fit", if you know what I mean. Your work as a medic, physician, and then the charity, are also very commendable! It's so nice to travel to other universes and to be reminded that not everyone are heartless conquerors - they have their own families, their own politics, but at the end of the day, you guys are still working for the betterment of your own race and your world! Not just another one of those heartless empires hellbent on domination, yuck. I do am positive on you, after saying all this, so I do hope we can meet again soon for lunch, or something. I am not sure if you people have interdimensional communication, so maybe we can visit you on a monthly basis, same location. You definitely cannot miss me from a crowd, hehe. Oh, right, before I go and I forgot - Police Captain Dr. Stepan Alexandrovich Marmesont, you have been a particularly exceptional and well-meaning man yourself, and I also love what you have been doing, of course! My personal thoughts concerning 'Angela Stella'

"If only I were able to, I would love to extend my congratulations to this great explorer—preferably, in person—for I've never met someone like her who has left the Earth to explore a new frontier: space, a place so far from us that we cannot reach and so vast that we can never truly conquer it, no matter how advanced we are. Yes, the galaxies, the stars, and the universe at large are evidence of God's immeasurable power, and all these "powerful" inventions made by mankind to emulate the Lord's power are inferior. The First Captain Angela Stella truly deserves my admiration and respect to go where no man has ever explored, and this is a person from Valentine Z. And I have no doubt that she will ever be forgotten by the billions of people on this world should she pass away; man has made one small step in that age of space exploration, we will make several giant leaps in the future all thanks to the First Captain and the allies that made her trip possible."

"War is just one big senseless matter that annihilates even the greatest of armies, eh? Well, my colleague would argue that war is the bearer of fruits, new technology, and new armies to ensure that your army is the last one standing. However, those are his words, not mine. I've experienced the hell that war brings to us all. It isn't great, it's tragic, and heart-breaking when you lose people because the powers that be seek to sacrifice the many for their ambitions. Perhaps, that makes me a hypocrite. It most likely does, but that is by the nature of my homeland, and how my kind evolved to survive the climate to stay alive, and to hope to live comfortably. Once you reach the top of the ladder. It's been a repetitive trait since the primitive years of the Alkdorian people. Otherwise, Oswald, you are quite the leader there. Done some good with war memorials and for whatever else, your people have prospered immensely. Despite me personally disagreeing with your views on the Government being involved in making that prosperity happen without the individual man or woman doing making it happen for themselves. But still, I congratulate you, and wish you a long reign."

"The hypocrisy of Jasper Slick, with whom I have the misfortune of sharing a title,^[1] is practically tangible. That stunted psychopath, whose name is one of the most ridiculous I've ever heard, was nothing before being handed the world on a silver platter by a member of his country's greedy and decadent aristocracy, and yet he thinks that he earned his position? And his politics! His beliefs! What are his beliefs? That his populace should essentially eat each other to get to the top? That individuals should only ever work together for their own benefit, betraying one another as soon as there is something to be gained? These are the worst excesses of capitalism brought to their greatest logical extent. In Tarkvald, we believe in things greater than any individual. We believe in sacrifice; true sacrifice, not temporary pains for future personal gains, but sacrifice for the greater good- for your fellow man. In Tarkvald, we do not serve ourselves. We serve each other. I can only hope that one day the Alkdorian people will, one day, join together and rise up to liberate themselves from this pointless torment. If they are especially fortunate, perhaps these revolutionaries will be technocrats like us, instead of some rabble of corrupt communists."

Honestly, I like you. Are you controversial? Sure. But who isn't in the limelight? I could hug my own sister and some tabloid would call me incestuous. You seem like a genuinely nice guy. You shot fascists in the Pacific Front. And while I do understand that your world's fight was different from our fight - the Alaskan Natives would like to thank you anyways. And while I do not personally support the pursuit of liberalism, I can understand where you're coming from - and I do appreciate you trying to lean more to the left in-general. I... do find it a bit hypocritical that you were anti-American "Neocolonialist" though. While I do realize that America is not virtuous when it comes to its foreign relations, I find it weird that you were not vocal about the Invasion of Nasser-controlled Egypt nor the continued... erm, I'll stop there before I start sounding like some radical John Redcom-esc stereotype. And to address your largest elephant in the room, I do not care that you married an American Jew and I do not get why you British thought that was so controversial. I get that maybe marrying a Jew wasn't exactly an uncontroversial decision during the 1940s, but come on. Are we not all Gods children? So I suppose that I am happy that you stuck it through.

Ah, but I think I am done rambling. I have no qualms with you, and I think that you are certainly one of the better British Monarchs. Though... maybe "great" is a bit of an oversell. I hope you have a happy retirement, sir.*

A breath of absolutely fresh air after my more recent opinion pieces. He cares for his nation's environment over the promise of profit, and is not a complete puppet. He tolerates other nations, recognizing what works for his small polity may not apply to larger ones, and vice versa. There have been no sweeping, unreasonably far-reaching reforms right off the bat, merely small steps in the right direction. He prefers if others do not meddle in his nation's affairs, even if he himself can do nothing for it, and although apparently he is a poor politician, his charisma and model of thinking are an exemplary showcase of what a true leader should be. Simple. Humble. Charismatic. Not some all-powerful cruel god, not some misguided hyper-environmentalist dictator, not some boyish monarch that speaks in contradictions and anger issues, not a roaming nomadic warlord... "Well, lemme' save people's time and say, that according to the dossier, there ain't no way we gonna be able to keep at least neutral relations with this Imperial Fatherland and it's emperor Oswald. Or his heirs and generals. Their vehement upholding of uptight conservatism prevents us. So yes, the average official statement of them on Sky Reavers looks like this - "They are criminals, cause they have fun. Send cops and soldiers and kill them all." So yes, I am gonna also be straight to the point and say, that trying to smooth our relations would be a fruitless prospect, which would only waste lots of money and time of our diplomats from different factions. I say, we just keep an eye on him. If he tries to attack, we will know and prepare to send the invaders back to their fatherland in pieces. Until then, we will not perform any hostile actions against him. We will just have fun and enjoyment of life, while establishing ties to more open minded countries. Maybe, I should invite some folks from Zittravgrad? Or come over to Deccan... Or maybe, just maybe try to establish closer relations with Sherechia.

"Alright, I'm the grandpa here so let me tell you a story, after I stepped down and my assistant took over, there was a civil war, backed by the United Federation, they overthrew our people's party and installed bankers, businessmen disguised as professional politicians to lead the country, then I died from old age and from above I watched as inequality and social tensions grew, I met a young boy and he rallied the people to overthrow the capitalists, we won but the resulting war flattened most cities. After that we had to rebuild by ourselves. Plenty of nations have suffered the same fate, the word "liberated" means under the ownership of the rich.

You here is if the United Federation actually cared for human rights, you overthrew an oppressive government and you rebuilt the land, bringing freedom and prosperity. You kept some aspects of socialism to ensure that everyone gets a share of the economic growth and for that I congratulate you, you are driven by morals, I don't care if you drink a lot, you are still a moral person who operates under the principle of freedom, freedom that is, free from tyranny from both corporations and dictators. You are Inogo Estima but way more extroverted."

"Except, I ain't the one, who overthrew the Edgar's regime. In 1982, when we have revolted against tyranny, I wasn't even born. So I can't take credit for the revolution. And the rebuilding too. I became a leader only recently, when was deemed worthy. I got to lead Sky Reavers in their glorious period and plan to bring them even more glory and honor."-Shawn Bjornson

"Younger people don't need to bow down to the likes of Kai Tsofan; sure, he has plenty of reasons to get rid of his opponents, doesn't clean his bloody hands and the fact that he's a cold-blooded killer. People nowadays need people like me to open their eyes and see the truth: this world is so messed up because of people like Kai Tsofan and his successors. Sherechia's gotta change or it's gotta go."

"I know you look like a very outgoing, approachable, and honest person with noble ideas of getting the gays to marry. But holy shit, this is very petty. Lying about your own brother fondling somebody else is inappropriate for what? To get more room. I cheat and lie to the system to earn an honest living but this is real petty, man, I don't know what to say."

"But this doesn't mean we can't be partners. Depending on who has the bigger briefcase, maybe I can help one of you out. I mean, I know how the court works in Japan: Guilty until proven innocent. This is nothing special, just like the McDonald's hot coffee spill litigation case. Only one of your careers would be left standing after this."

San Francisco is the Changing City where tech startups are booming, hipster culture flourish, and the economy is prospering. However poverty, economic inequality, and crime is on the rise as SF becomes the site of a power struggle between a resurgent Japanese Empire and a rump US in the Rockies after a Soviet Cold War victory. It is up to the effort of the elite if troublesome SAU in keeping the peace in SF as conspiracy abounds.

"The true enemy is still hiding in the shadows."

1986, Yuri's Epsilon Army is close to taking over the world, and a paramilitary organization tries to hold what's still free from his control.
