I've never heard of anyone really talk about Tool.

Radiohead -  $2 + 2 = 5$

Genre: Alternative rock, experimental rock

I love this song title.

It's just so beautifully depressing and sometimes I feel like a ~~crepe~~ creep too.

Also, I kind of like Zombie but I also don't. It's a bit complicated.

I like Zombie a lot. Although when I first heard it, I didn't really like parts of Dolores' singing at first because her voice kept cracking in the song, but I liked the music however.

Mike Patton's full discography, I think. Made a playlist on Spotify just for this legend.

Currently listening to Oddfellows by his band Tomahawk. 8/10 album.

Tbh, as far as I've listened so far, I prefer their earlier stuff instead of their newer stuff. I love a lot of the songs I've heard from The Bends (1995) so far and I love Creep. OK Computer (1997) is also great. I've only heard Idioteque from Kid A, which was ok, but I could do without it. I'm also pissed off how it's considered "intelligent dance music". I've listened to some songs from In Rainbows (2007) and I didn't like it. Their song Lotus Flower from The King Of Limbs (2011) is also crappy. :/

Seems like with most of these classic artists/bands, their earlier stuff is the best.

I agree with you on IDM; it's an extremely pretentious name.

I'm not familiar with Radiohead beyond Kid A, which I thought was excellent. My favorite track on there is New National Anthem (mostly for nostalgic reasons; without knowing it for years, I heard that song a lot when I was younger ☐ ).

I can see why it may not be for everybody though.

Indeed. Although I don't really listen to Foetus and Mr Bungle. I have yet to explore their music.

Bands do tend to change a lot over time. For example, Bush is not really grungy like they were in the 1990s. That was awesome. ☹
