If I go on like this I'll have 400-500 new songs in 4 months from now. If I can do without sleep.
Props for Corrian though. Hope you have enough back-ups.

Someone is actually looking through the music I posted? Yeah, you're gonna find lots and lots of music over many genres and never run out of stuff to find if you do that ☐

You have great taste in music! Although I don't particularly like most of the songs you posted (I find instrumentals and prog-rock boring for instance), some of your genres overlap mine (unavoidably) and even there you've posted many artists that are new to me. And even from the genres that I don't like you could've posted much worse. All in all, your suggestions are reliable and the fact that you've posted tens of thousands of them makes it worth checking them all out.

I listen to a LOT of music over a wide range of genres, so there's bound to be something you're not going to like that I like. I'd be surprised if anything if you liked everything.

Progressive rock has a lot of bands that bore me as well, but there's a lot of good ones, too.

As a rule I don't like more than, say, 15% of someone else's library. If I like 10% of yours it's totally worth it.

In my own library, I have only 4 songs per artist on average. So it's hard to be efficient in finding the best songs of genres/artists that I don't particularly like. That's why I appreciate that you don't see the type of person that blindly dumps some albums of artists that he likes on his pc. Every time someone tells says to me "I don't even know 50% of what's on my iPod" I die a little.

Matt & Kim - Silver Tiles

Halfway the first topic. 7% completed*, I'm 8 songs richer.

*If you stopped posting now and forever.
