Starting a cult which hoardes firearms and brainwashes people into joining (as seen in any number of tv shows).

Depends where it was stolen from. A government institution, mandatory return of the artwork and up to 10 years in a psychiatric facility. A private institution same return clause but the psychiatric hold time may be lower depending on the art value.

Reckless endangerment of life results in 5 years for each life you endangered and it stacks (example: endangerment of 4 people results in 20 years) It also results in a fine of 5000 Rostorian dollars and surveillance after release.

Our law is very similar to, and developed alongside, Canadian law, which does not have vehicular manslaughter as a specific crime, and would separate it into one of 6 crimes:

dangerous driving causing death

criminal negligence causing death

failure to stop for police causing death

street racing causing death

impaired driving causing death

hit and run driving causing death

Assuming only one of the six instances is involved in a particular case, the penalty would vary depending on which specific crime it is classified as, with a maximum for dangerous driving causing death being 14 years.

What the FLQ did during the October Crisis, which includes detonating over 200 bombs, mostly targeting mailboxes, but also the Montreal stock exchange; stealing several tons of dynamite; financing bank robberies; threatening more attacks; some murder; obtaining illegal firearms and firearm modifications; kidnapping British diplomat James Cross and using him for ransom; and kidnapping Quebec minister of labour Pierre Laporte, and later executing him via strangulation, hiding the body near an airport.
