Vandalism in general is illegal with a fine, however, if it's provable that he was beaten because he was Armenian, increase of the fine and jail time under Doniport Anti-Hate Penal Law

Being forced to pay back the lost items or the value of what was lost, otherwise jail time.

If it was for the purposes of blasphemy, then a hefty jail period or possibly execution by electric chair.

Societal Neglection! Nah just kidding, $60 000 fine and an analysis on their ability to take care of a child. Child caring courses will be compulsory for that person as well.

Parliament doesn't exist, but we have a similar legislature, and the punishment for that would be quite severe, depending on loss of life and damages. The lowest possible punishment would be 50 years in prison.

Depending on where in public.

In a national park or in city parks? Not an issue, but they can be told to move if it comes into contact with people who report it; out of sight, out of mind.

In the middle of town plazas or close to schools? Immediate fine.

Death penalty, violent robbery itself carries a punishment of returning the stole goods plus a hefty fine and substantial jail time, plus covering the costs of any damages to the person and property, but murder is the main charge here, which carries the death penalty in Andronya.

Bestiality. (Having you know what with an animal)

Depends on who you are—females are the ones giving consent after all, so if it's male animal x female human and the female gives consent, no crime, but if it's male human x female animal (because to our knowledge animals can't give consent) then we take away all your animals and put you under house arrest for 3 months. Homosexual bestiality is essentially the same crime as prior with MH x FA. (These are tacked on to regular rape charges).

Public whipping + castration/sterilization.

AN: the above situation will only happen if the builders were incompetent. If that is the case, they will be fined heavily. No punishment for the person who leans, though he may receive compensation from the builder.
