I mean, we can actually create a mathematical definition for evolution in terms of the evolutionary algorithm and then write code to deal with abstract instances of evolution, which basically equates to mathematical proof that evolution works. All that remains is to show that biological systems replicate in such a way as to satisfy the minimal criteria required for evolution to apply to them, something which has already been adequately shown time and again. At this point, we've pretty much proven that not only can evolution happen, it pretty much must happen since it's basically impossible to prevent it from happening.

Great song. I just bought Babel (the album) recently.

I need to listen to Babel still, though the brief listening of it I did I wasn't as impressed with it as with their debut album. It didn't seem to have as many songs that stood out to me as being good, and most of the songs sounded more straightforward compared to some of their more impressive songs.

Doesn't mean it is a bad album, though, just not up to par with the first. But like I said, I still need to listen to it more thoroughly.

They are supposedly being more experimental on their next album, though.
