Premier Fukushima Sonoko

"Well, It's high time I take the plunge as Mizushima has and talk to some peers across time and space. How do you do, Lady Sophia, Duchess of Cheshire, Protector of Swans? My, my, you're interesting so far. Reading about your experiences takes me back to my own university days, though Yamamachi Provincial wasn't anywhere close to the prestige of Girtton. You're pretty multifaceted, you know? You come from nobility, yet you thought Oomiyā's expensive clothes were obnoxious. And yet you were also so quick to forgive that when you both tripped headlong into the most human of all feelings: awkwardness! And based on your op-eds in the student newspaper, I think you're proud to be a lady, but not too interested in what 'society' insists is 'ladylike.' Heh, I like that! Like I said, it reminds me of my own university days.

"Still, part of me hedges just a smidge on your, er, creative approach to university rules. A tea party on the roof? I mean, it sounds picturesque, but I'm not sure it's productive. When you get marched into President Chelsea's office because of civil disobedience for suffrage, you want her thinking about how you're a straight-A student and a campus role model, not about how you're a troublemaker. I know Meikawa and Mizushima would call me naïvely fastidious for saying so – but what I'm suggesting is saving the feather-ruffling for when it counts."

Russian Security Council

Ataman Stepanov's thoughts on Fukushima Sonoko

The person in question is a Premier who also is an agnostic - some of the militant anti-theists would interpret it as plain cowardice, but Free Territory really has no businesses with the personal beliefs of foreign leaders, unless it comes down to invade them and greet with a lump of lead. Either way, the fact that the regulation of magnetic tape production is the biggest thing over which Baizou's parliament and council fight shows that things are indeed alright for the most part, as more time is spent on such trivial, everyday things. Of course Fukushima knows when to keep her mouth shut and bridge the gap, so the choice for grand coalition was really obvious. Fukushima could probably be a great mediator between conflicting families and couples if she wasn't a premier. Or perhaps just return to her positions at management - that business graduate degree seems to have worked well for her.

So, she is also the youngest premier in her country's history? Well, 38 years is still quite a lot, and there seem to be quite a few leaders which are even younger than that - in fact, the good old (ha!) Companion Galanskov was only 25 back at 1964 when the Black Army started to expand, and that teen spirit during the Siberian Black Army uprising burned like a fierce fire. Last, but not the least - Fukushima's policies. Welfare funding and civil liberties are pretty sound policies, especially if they are like bread and circuses to distract the population. Paying for transitional surgeries still sounds like something that's too early to implement in the Free Territory, even if those under the letter of T in acronym are accepted with acceptance being enforced. Overall, she is one of those liberal/social democratic leaders who will probably go down into history as decently average and benevolent, with if not pristine, then at least not too stained record. Neutral.

"Mister Sablin, A utopian optimist would say you truly do want to better the livelihood of your fellow man, a pessimist would instead claim you merely wish to impose your masters' way of life and train of thought through far-away borders. Somebody in between could think you believe in your civilizational 'uplifting' and your people have the capacity to impose it. Now what do I think of your military service to impose this mission? Selflessness and military service is a tautology, to some extent, but that's just me. Don't get me wrong, earned pins and badges are a deserved enhancer to uniforms, they're neat motivators, they look keen...but eh. Forming part of a military force implies being part of a greater machine working in synchronicity. I did my part to the best extent I could, I'd like to think. No medals though...oh I'm getting off track, aren't I? Eh-heh. Speaking of other things...eeeeeeeh.

Ah, yeah, speaking of working in clockwork: progress is a funny word. You Earthlings, and Westerners in particular, value it a lot. Technical progress or societal progress? The former is very nebulous...my people would regard yours in the same way your anthropologists probably look at primitives in those Sad Tropics for attributing some kind of meaningful destiny to subjectively drawn out historical processes, playing connect-the-dots with otherwise meaningless events, I mean.

I'm sure you're a sweet kid though, I'll invite you out for a drink sometime maybe.

"This man... Is certainly someone I would see myself dead before supporting, for there are a few key things about his life, his attitudes and the such that is. Condemnable, to say the least.

From what I have read about the Lord General, despite the short description that he has the occasional 'devil-may-care' attitude and sense of comradeship to fellow soldiers, Sotorak cannot help but be so very selfish.

He would see men and women die in skirmishes and battles within his own lands, pitting rivals against each other like his nation is simply a gladiatorial arena, and letting them slaughter themselves. This simply abhors me, to see Human Life thrown away because of either personal amusement, or psychopathic calculation is nothing short of a crime, I can tell you that.

Sir Sotorak, there are many, many other ways to deal with political instability, your first thoughts should not be to embrace violence and bloodshed. Even if one may disagree with his enemy, it is important to never forget that your opponent is a Human Being, with a life, a family, friends and a profession themselves.

It took a bloodshed, not because of him but against him and his nation to finally consider diplomacy and international cooperation... If such a major event is what took you to consider this, any hopes of continued peace, and potential prosperity looks... Unlikely.

New Albania deserves better, Lord General... One day, I hope you recognise this, and change your ways before the damage becomes irreversible.

President Lukina Mikhailovna, of the Leyboristskaya Partiya Alyaski.

BN, here's an interesting one for you... The character I want you to react to isn't a leader, but perhaps you will be interested in reacting to her anyway?

Zhernakova Konstantinova

Царство Аляски, or the Russian Empire lives on in it's old colony, Alaska after the conclusion of the Russian Revolution of 1917. Standing with it's allies against the Moscow Accord of Russia and it's alliance members, nevertheless world tensions dwindle and the people of Alaska grow ever more desensitised with the conservative status quo, and their insistence on clinging to a now redundant past.

Ataman Stepanov's thoughts on Zhernakova Konstantinova

Здравствуйте - finally a fellow Russian. It seems that Zhemakova Konstantinova got promoted to a consul status - that is a very important position, and one could hope that she has the gut and competency to bear such responsibility. One of her undergraduates was mathematics, and it seems that she also could be one of the number guys in the economics. Or perhaps an another Shafarevich from Korri, who knows? It is still puzzling why Zhemakova picked to study political studies, as those are typically considered as a time thrown into sever and wasted years. Her canyon photo is pretty average and safe, nothing much to add there.

Her father was skilled at maths and engineering - no surprise. Zhemakova also appears to be from a well-off family, over which Stepanov is still a bit jealous due of his ancestry from Siberian peasantry. And of course she had all of the money needed for studies, of course. However, Zhemakova also moved back to her home at Alyaski due of sense of nationalism - a wise choice, considering how some people view America as "devourer of people's former nationality and identity, leaving only an American citizen behind". Either way, her new role as a consul seems like an improvement over being an ambassador to a small microstate. The overall stance on Ms. Zhemakova is neutrality, as she is just as milquetoast as the party she is a member of.

"And so the Dream once more parts the veil; and in its visage all hope appears lost. An impudent and rebellious youth spared penance only by nepotism. A chalk-face of a kinless civilisation thrown into the midst of war. There are those who cultivate for themselves a reputation among the lesser soldiers; it is no sign of virtue to be honoured by the mukulombitjngul yet unhardened by spilled blood. A man of fervour for a country he defied and for a people consigned to collaborate with rebels. An upstart incapable of subordination or knowing his place; he instead defies all order imposed by his betters in favour of his own forsaken vision. Such travesties are expected of minikkuli such as he.

I know not of what enemies he fights. I know not of what allies he deems his own. I know only what the Dream had told of him and it has painted a portrait of a cause best forsaken. Each time I cast the pituri upon myself I witness only mounting atrocities against the Everdream and behold ever greater damnations of the future; I pray they are not truly to be. Should he come to be; should he ever be; I bid him no goodwill. He knows nothing of the Everdream or the ways of righteousness; nothing of blood or kin; nothing save the vapour he spews forth from his mouth as if it were some grand revelation, and not the poison of a hundred self-deceptions yet unveiled. Should Daruwong ever fall to one of his spirit I should weep for its future; better he should remain known only in portents and visions than manifest upon us. He is not the worst I have born witness to; this does nothing to diminish his innumerable failings."

Haber's Status: Generously given fourteen days until he gets kicked out by Oswald. Right now he's clinging onto dear life like Trump during his last days in office

"It boggles my mind to even comprehend that this woman was able to command anything if her nicknames are 'The Lazy Dragon', 'Greatest Under The Heavens', 'Flying General' and vice versa. In the Reichstag I hear rumours about her that what she does most of the time is lazing about, eating and being gay! Lazy and gay! Utterly absurd! I shudder at the thought of the future of our species will be in the hands of people like her. Future generations need leaders, not soulless caricatures like this spear-chucking, heavily armoured Dummkopf I'm

Oh, a New Order? I'll have the rarest steak you have, thank you very much. A bit bougie if I do say so myself, but hunger transcends class, after all!

Wait, sorry, that's your political party? What a silly name for a right-wing coalition -- you can't have anything "new" under the boot of reaction. I must've mistaken you for a waitress from a back-alley Turanskidak bar with that sour glare and hate-inducing, self-righteous posture. It makes me rather angry. Though I can't imagine there's much about you not to lament, I suppose. Raised by wealth stuffed into your greedy little pockets by your money-grubbing relatives, rising to the Chancellorship in a vile regime that you aim to dominate the world with in your power-hungry gambit, I see. You aren't unique. You're just another imperialist agent of the old world, another speed-bump in the way of total proletarian revolution.

I'll put it this way, Chancellor: your days are numbered. One day, the guillotine's blade with swipe through the air without remorse, and your pleas for forgiveness will be silenced by the sharp edge of justice. And the people you had oppressed shall indeed rejoice, knowing that they shall never again suffer your malice. And your "Group 935" will disappear with you.

Still, a steak would be nice. I'm famished.

Reinkalistani Communist Party and President of the People's Federation of Reinkalistan

roving student militias and widespread hatred for the elderly.
In the midst of a room-temperature cultural revolution that's lost its momentum, the Party carefully plans its next move.
As the brittle bones of fragile empires begin to crack beneath their own weight, history's symphony reaches crescendo pitch. The future is all but certain.

"There is only one thing worse than the sheer magnitude of narcissistic self-gratification that oozes forth from the very pores of this man, and that is when he very literally believes every single word of his own hype. I have seen a few communist nations that do not behave like incorrigible assholes, but this man goes out of his way to break the scale in the other direction. I feel that my mind has become sullied by the mere knowledge of this man's existence, and I am uncertain whether I should be shocked or appalled that this man helms an actual nation. I think I shall go with both." -Cala Granses Wavecrasher

Godulan Puppet #2, RPing as technologically advanced tribal society founded by mongols and vikings (and later with multiple other Asian and Native American cultures) motivated by an intrinsic devotion to the spirit of competition. They'll walk softly, talk softly, and make soothing noises as they stab you in the back and take your stuff... unless you're another Caleshan, whereupon they'll only stab you in the back figuratively!

"I know my limits, and I know them well. I am no diplomat, no man of great words or grandiose speeches. I prefer to let my actions speak volumes. However, I am well aware of the advantages provided by such a silver tongue, a power Cala Granses Wavecrasher possesses with much skill. He manages to ride herd on a diaspora of violent and ever shifting politically tribes. I'll admit, I am somewhat envious of his ability to solve such tenuous situations diplomatically." -Lord-General Sotorak
