Her Majesty Queen Alexandra is clearly a very capable and versatile monarch, as well as a remarkable person in her own right. Her intelligence and bravery to the point of willingness to involve herself in military events surely outweighs mine. I do hope for cordial relations in the future.

"An Emperor... I cannot fault him for his clothing, as that itself would prove to be my undoing, though I must say that he does appear to look like he fits his title. I must say that I am very impressed of his skill with both shot and blade, as it's something I too like to partake in if I had the time these days, though he is vastly superior to my own ability, as he went to much more extensive academies and even went to tournaments... something I am much less willing to do myself.

As for his actual ruling aspect? His first decree seems to be of great value to his nation, even if some may claim otherwise, the assimilation of other cultures and of a group that know their way around fighting is certainly very useful, and the loyalty that is brought forth by providing this group of immigrants with land and the freedom to their traditions to an extent, will prove to be the biggest benefit to them.

...though I cannot agree with his expansion of the nation, that I cannot bring myself to see as anything good. Expansion can bring many problems, but it is his decision. At least he expanded the infrastructure to ensure that these new lands are not left to fend as poor border territories."

"Firstly, while I must address the fact that Mr Nakamura-san is certainly an attractive young man, his character however is quite polarising. On the bright side, I quite agree with several of his policies which prioritised environmentalism and improvement in energy efficiency, I am a bit skeptical however towards his measures of establishing tariff and the process of deregulation of businesses as all these could lead to severe consequences if not properly managed. In addition, his support for the same-sex cause is quite commendable while I am a bit put off by his endorsement of forceful silencing on dissenters. In all, I do hope that these flaws could one day be fixed in order to allow Mr Nakamura-san to reach his full potential"
