"Wants military to hold the office, but he seeks peaceful measures first, being reluctant to use military ones... It is possible, that he applies one of the Zun Tzu's principals of Art of War - "Hence to fight and conquer in all your battles is not supreme excellence, the supreme excellence is to conquer without fighting." In most other things, he holds it at the center, a popular pragmatic approach, I agree with only sometimes. I don't know, how successful is socialism in case of declining resources, because there are hundreds of socialism models, and each is different and was tested in different conditions, but I wish him luck. If he wants to run such a model in such conditions, he'll need it alot. This economic model is rather unforgiving and mismanagement can lead to dire consequences."-Shawn Bjornson

The Knights of Mare Nostrum are an order formed in 1189 centered around islands in the Mediterranean after the Knights Hospitaller and Templar merged, along with the integration of other knightly orders, serving as a militarized Papal State which utilises what is essentially hyper-militaristic canon law.

It is a cold windy day when the men of the Black Legion or Dirlwanger Brigade came to the town of Puerto Williams. The family hid their children as the men filled the lambs with bullet holes, took away their grains, smashed the pots, and lit every house on fire. The men rigged explosives on a school door and blasted it open where they are greeted by 20 children with their little arms raised in surrendering to them. Dirlwanger ordered the men to open fire on the little children then finished them off by bayonet to save bullets... And life goes on in Patagonia with little care for the world

"Yes, I remember tales about old chivalrous knights of yore before. Like those old Templar knights fighting over Jerusalem against Muslim hordes. But for what? To reconquer some "holy land" to fulfill a prophecy of some Jew-worshipping religion? You didn't do well enough in eradicating the homosexuals, you p'ssy. No, you ought to round them up, separate them from their "children" then shoot them and smear their blood all over the wall if you are willing to please your God. And guess what? We are far from your white knight in shining armor."

"The Skyhookers- no, that just sounds wrong. The Skyhookians don't really have a singular leader I can address (unless you count their Overboss, but he's more of a mascot than anything) but, in general, they are a rowdy bunch of outlaws who love freedom and take what they want, and I'd be lying if I said a part of me didn't love them for it. They can be occasionally problematic when they decide that our frankly meager trade tax is worth trying to circumvent through smuggling, but they have proven to be helpful allies when we can actually reach an accord about a common enemy. In summary, our relationship is... complicated. I just hope they eventually realize that our trade tax is not worth being chased out of port for."

-Chinta Vacaniat, Vincosian Consul

EDIT: "I've been informed by my advisors that I probably should state my opinion on Shawn Bjornson specifically since he's the closest the Skyhookians have to an actual leader. I've never met him in person, but I've heard the stories. I'm not sure how many of them are true, but from what I've heard, he does seem like a genuinely good (if somewhat rowdy and naive) person. I certainly would never want to face him in single combat."

(This nation mainly relies on lore from the anime/manga series JoJo's Bizarre Adventure, specifically Part 5, Golden Wind. It also uses lore developed in the non-canon light novels Purple Haze Feedback and Golden Heart, Golden Ring, as well as the unrelated anime Black Lagoon. This also contains diverged lore, specifically that everyone can see and interact with stans, Giorno Giovanna never existed, and that Sorbet & Gelato never died nor investigated the boss due to conceded demands.)

She is competent, well-mannered, and proactive enough to be an effective ruler. If I had one complaint, it would be her support of the Conservative Party that seeks to perpetuate the broken system of succession that her country is based on, but then again few rulers with that much power are willing to give any of it up. PMT/Early FT - Decopunk. Zitragrad is a crowned republic in a planet somewhere else in the universe. The formerly wartorn nation keeps a facade of normalcy and order while enjoying the societal and cultural decadence that marks the new Roaring Twenties. The paranoid authoritarian government tries its best to uphold order in the face of uncertainty, while its people want nothing more than a breathing space. "He's not terrible, though I have expressed my disdain for monarchs in the past and those sentiments still stand. His arcane abilities are indeed quite impressive, but this alone does not give him the right to rule. Now that my obligatory grandstanding and anti-monarchy spiel is over, let me say what I really think of Antimonos II. He is a very respectable leader who has, for the most part, defied all my expectations. He is perhaps the only monarch who I've ever seen willingly relinquish power. In addition to this, he is valorous and cares deeply for his people even when they fear what he is doing for their sake. Perhaps he will be the one to end the hereditary succession system that plagues Thakia, but at the very least, his reign will offer a brief respite from tyranny. Either way, we will not attempt to liberate Thakia so long as Antimonos II remains on the throne and continues this trend of decentralization, even if we disagree with his economic policy."

-Chinta Vacaniat, Vincosian Consul.

"My advisors have informed me that I have been 'ninja'd' as they say and should speak about Kazimir Miroslavsky of Zitragrad instead. I will keep this short. I do not like him. He stands at the edge of tyranny, and while he is still well-intentioned, his stance on political dissidence is, frankly, terrifying. He is not currently on our list because he does not significantly impede the civil liberties of his people, but every day he drags himself closer to hostility with the Republic. We do not know how much longer we can tolerate his rule."

If you see a truck rolling in black and with a skull insignia you knew full well that's Dirlewanger on the move. One unfortunate Legion conscript was heckled by Dirlewanger who got off and ordered the green bandit to wash his truck. With great precision and attention to detail, the bandit cleaned his truck squeaky clean. Dirlewanger merely stood silence in observance until he purposefully threw dust at it and shot him for making his truck dirty again... He then turns to the other man and motions him to clean it again. Thus the Cycle of Insanity and Killings continues.

"Seeing a man believing in a false sense of egalitarianism and equality tickles my funny bone. For beings were not made equal and they would only be in death as they share the same fate of being dug in six feet under. You are a stratocrat who is a pussy and doesn't want to get his hands dirty. "Our friendship with Mistress Mai and the Kitsunes is a high point of pride for us, and the elvish folk as well. She deeply cherishes not only her own people, but all life under her care. It would be wise of other world rulers learned from her wisdom, but such a dream is beyond even her, unfortunately. We hope Mistress Mai keeps finding knowledge worth learning and life worth loving."

"Why hello there! I must say, I find myself somewhat baffled that you would actually have established a friendly relationship with that High Priestess lady... aside from the seemingly excessive breeding programs I'd not be far off in noting that you are every possible thing that she would hate, or whatever facsimile she would assert. I am well and truly surprised, but I do hope that such a contact would cause you two to... what is the phrase? 'Mellow out'? I believe that to be correct..." -KazRamael
