Slavery in this country was abolished only in 1902.
And currently tensions between Israel and Egypt in your world are rising after Israeli general elections.

That since Waisnor made its Olympic debut in 1994, its athletes have won a total of 47 medals. By todays rankings, that would rank Waisnor's Olympic athletes as the 41st most successful, between Ethiopia (54) and Croatia (44). Pretty good considering they've only attended 13 games.

They've literally been at war for 3 years. What "tensions" is there to be had?

AN: While it is considerably smaller and its population -presumably- a fraction of that of earth's, Mars has been the undeniable, unchallenged more powerful of the two human polities in the Sol System ever since it broke away from the UN.

According to the map they own Costa Rica.

The Jamesian Republic is an allegory for the United States of America. It has 48 states like the USA did from 1912-1959 and the Stars and Stripes mean the same thing like they do in Real Life.

I have learned that AN is basically the US of A with alternate names for most nations, and an Earth-like planet. Honestly, nothing special stuck out too much, because it is just renamed US, but goddamn if I did not get the vibes of 'Isekai or Vaguely Fantasy anime that renames every single naton with vaguely similar alternatives.'

The Rulzeans are incredibly genetically diverse, especially considering they are still capable of interbreeding and thus could be argued to still be of the same species. For example, the more common Northern Burrowers have an average height of between 180 to 190 centimetres, whilst their Seltran cousins stand significantly taller, with an average height between 260 and 270 centimetres. The factbook mentions that interbreeding between these 'species' results in "minimal physical or genetic issues", but how commonplace are such pairings in the first place? Are genetic issues common, even if they are not particularly problematic?

Pairings tend to be somewhat common in border regions, but as Rulzea are primarily stationary, unlike Nomadic humans, they're not incredibly common. As for genetic issues between the various member Species of the Race, typically interbreeding results in the child taking on a majority of the traits from one of their parents, making them appear to be a member of the same species.

So, after the Martian War for Independence, the foundations for the Republic of Mars were set and the constitution, which was probably inspired by the United States' Constitution, was signed and ratified by all 32 city-states of Mars, and the Martian Revolution was compared to the American Revolution of old, now, just like the American Constitution, the Martian Constitution came with laws that protected the liberty and civil rights of individuals very strictly.

In the AN, the events of Command & Conquer have become a reality, with Portugal being aligned with the UN backed Global Defence Initiative, and Morocco instead serving the Brotherhood of Nod.

September 23rd 2040... The then fledgling Anti-Gravity Racing Commission establishes a unified superstate to act as a gigantic test track for high speed AG racing in an effort to revive a bankrupt European Federation.

In 2241, we've taken that to another level. Behold the advent of governance through entertainment.

after working for 13 years straight Pierre unveiled his(and the worlds) first anti-gravity vehicle :the NX-1000 on March 22nd 2034 which paved the way for a new type of racing [and] boosted the global economy so much that it actually got out of the economic rut the world was facing at the time

"Western Theram used to be a member of a much larger Nation located in South America known simply as Theramia. Theramia banned the usage of recreational drugs not backed by prescription. So obviously police dicked native tribes over, because it's the America's. Like Africa if your not fucking over the natives what are you doing?

When Western Theram seceded (would love to know how that happened) from Theramia the drugs flowed freely again."

They're a city state that was founded on an artificial island that was constructed during WWII as a basically dumb plan to have literal floating fortresses so the United States could bring tons of troops over to China to land there.

While Aikoland had a number of indigenous Romance languages, those languages went de facto extinct due to French colonisation -though they might not view it as such- until 3 of them saw a revival in the 20th century. While nearly a third of Aikoland is fluent in English, 2.2% of them views English as their native language.

In your world Poland and Germany (with Alsace nonetheless) are still in their 1918 borders and Tibet and Texas are independent countries.

Zeloria's origins can be traced back to the rebellion of Antarctic colonists against the warring powers of Europe and South America, which had been demanding more and more sacrifices from the colonies to support the war effort. This uprising was simultaneous and coordinated among the colonies of enemy powers, which then unified under a libertarian and internationalist ideology.

Their population is small af (10 550).

Our nation is Poland, but there was a great Nazbol revolution, which overthrew the PZPR and freed Poland from USSR, in 1993. The Iron Curtain still exists, but it has changed its borders.
