Alice in Chains - Angry Chair

My nation DOES NOT reflect my political views. The interplanetary-level Federation government is libertarian only for realism purposes, and functions more like a confederation. Since it has such a large territory to manage, the federal bureaucracy can only provide the bare essentials efficiently, while most other decisions are devolved down to the planetary governments.

The intelligent tend to be cynical, while the bliss tend to be the most compassionate. Also, if your people on NS are categorized as cynical and compassionate, it is not a glitch, your society has made them psychopaths at worse and sociopaths at the least. Pelican is sick, I have every album.

Now,

Cold War Kids - Hang Me Up To Dry

I just finished going through their entire discography, except maybe some EP's and splits that I need to get to.

Try some Russian Circles, they are fantastic as well. There wasn't one song I disliked from all their albums, and a lot of them sounded pretty creative to me.

Already have, Russian Circles is pretty good (one full album and a couple songs from the others), but my fave is still Pelican. Also, North kicks ass too.

Just downloaded that Jesu song, exactly the type of music I was looking for.

As for my song,

Soundgarden - Blow Up the Outside World

I like Russian Circles a little more then Pelican, but mostly because I think they sound like they have more of a different style or something, I dunno. Though, I definitely will be getting some Pelican stuff later. I think some of my favorite songs from Pelican are on their most recent EP, like Ataraxia and Taraxis.

I think I created a North playlist on Spotify, or looked into that band at one point, but I can't really remember.

Jesu is a band I'm still looking into. They {or he, I think it's a solo project} have an interesting variety in some songs, and I've sorta been stuck on the 2 songs that are practically 20 minutes long, because I keep listening to parts over and over and such.

The vocals are very interesting in Jesu, because the singer has a lot of very tweaked vocals with echo effects on them a lot, which I don't think I've really heard in metal. I find it really neat though.

Nothing really in particular, since I keep jumping around.

Pelican-Ataraxia

Pelican's style hovers closer to actual metal, while Russian Circles is slightly more relaxing and doesn't really bring down the house with sheer sound as often as Pelican does with their music, which is why I prefer Pelican.

Same here, from what I've heard so far. I've jammed a lot of Pelican recently and only a handful of Russian Circles songs, but I think I prefer the former.

At the moment, though, I'm listening to Led Zeppelin's IV album while studying up on a good way to do an acoustic cover of Battle of Evermore :)
