@everyone,

Please DO NOT announce to the server when you are going to maste. This has been a reoccurring issue, and I'm not sure why some people have such under developed social skills that they think that a server full of mostly male strangers would need to know that. No one is going to be impressed and give you a high five (especially considering where that hand has been). I don't want to add this to the rules, since it would be embarrassing for new users to see that we have a problem with this, but it is going to be enforced as a rule from now on.

If it occurs, you will be warned, then additional occurrences will be dealt with at the discretion of modstaff. Thanks you.

Encryption is always better, my friend. Just to make sure. Encrypt everything and everything. Everything must be encrypted. Encryption is not a way, but a step of making a proper message.

Redacting/censoring is a great way of providing an IC explanation for not finishing a factbook.

The Borderlands are cruel but the Borderlands are necessary. The Siran have seen everything, everywhere and everytime. Trust the Siran. The Siran bring us hope, the Siran let us live. It is their generous will that we even exist, obey the Siran. The Siran are not your friend, the Siran are your commander, you are a subordinate. Just because you are a part of the greater whole does not mean you can see the greater whole. The classes are equal but the classes are structured.
