Let me get this straight, you want me to read the whole thing off and then type it up here summarised?

Saying something is due and then never committing to it.

For example, I was going to shop in a twilight night sky over a mountain and a blinding light with a couple of pagoda but I left it at a couple of reference pictures. I also wanted to develop more on the festival but left it hanging and the other stuff I'm putting back because of technical issues with mobo BIOS and my own technical ineptitude.

-Finish the risque Noir story behind the line of succession and the relationship between Charles and Montse/Tepka, because I think sexy crap gives me upvotes....though I 'EFFIN HATE NOIR because its cheesy and I consider the task a chore. Partially complete. I wanna get it over with this week.

-Finish the weird fantasy-western that makes fun of anime tropes that is Rairai's story in Tohorin, something I actually enjoy as I have tons of doodles about her. Less compete. Maybe next month.

-Find a way to make a "catgirl-inception" between the lore of both countries. Incomplete. Though I may chicken out and say that Rairai wishes she were a real Tohorinese (catgirl) and and make Charlie dream he were like a hardboiled detective instead of a failed one...and have the two get baked AF and mix each-other's hallucinations up, thus creating LP. Even less complete.

-Write about Greater Tohorin (no relation to Tohorin), which really places LP's geopolitics and the lore of the Imperial Family into place...nah, screw it. / don't know when I'll get to that.

All these nations that just rip things off from TNO.

I totally didn't steal the entire idea of Superethnos from TNO's Lev Gumilov. I also am definitely not planning on having the leader of my far right nation get assassinated which causes a 4 way civil war between the factions of this ideology with a popular leader making a neutral zone around the capital.

Description: I'm an MT Sweden under a fictional far-right ideology known as Holmism.

Basically Modern Sweden + "Folk, I gevär" + Lev Gumilov + Rampant Factionalism + Political Tension + Swedish Neo-Nazism + Sprinkles of Wacky.

tbf i'd be lying if i didn't say that tno's ideology-building and symbol-building, however derivative it ultimately is, didn't inspire me to try my hand at it with colbureau and co in palisade. it's really inspirational from a literary standpoint and great aesthetically. community, though...

This has probably been done before but it bears repeating.

Name a more iconic duo then seeing a thread dedicated to factbooks, and posting on it without the requisite factbooks.

tbh i've done that for palisade but primarily because i've got so much prewritten and no idea how to slot it together that it's hard for me to even know what i have and what i don't have written in factbooks any more.

Sometimes I have that problem where most of my factbooks are outdated and unnecessary but I can't bring myself to update or remove any of the things.

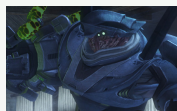

Other times I try to cram literally everything into a single colossal factbook.

I don't know which approach is better or worse.

I *like* to think I hit a fair balance of super Factbooks that link everything, to some separate work here and there that I link in my sig because they're not part of my Overview.

Fun fact: My Sig has 4400+ characters, way over the 800 limit.

- Arab nation ruled by a cartoonishly evil approximation of al-Qaeda or Hamas that does not seem to understand Islam beyond beheading infidels and throwing gay people off buildings.
- Colonies that are developed for next to no economic reason where atrocities never occur and the indigenous population is 100% on board with the colonial administration. Usually portrayed in a positive light.
- German nation inspired by the "German Empire" that still calls its military the Wehrmacht, engages in "blitzkrieg tactics", and has at least one character named Rommel.
- Royal women described as having "creamy" or "pale" skin and with at least one unnecessary paragraph describing how well-endowed they are.
- Magical high school that channels Harry Potter, Supernatural, D&D, and/or a wide assortment of animes.
- Pictures of an anime character being used to represent an original character.
- Pictures of a strikingly attractive model being used to represent an original character, especially the leader of a nation, who is probably under thirty for some inexplicable reason.
- Nation referring to its elite military unit as "Spartans" and referencing high-quality PMT body armor, training to be elite soldiers since childhood, or both.
- Constitutional monarchies that don't seem to have a lot of parliamentary procedures going on.
- Royal wedding role-play that often involves a love match or a lot of angst over a political match.

Also, note, while I do consider all of these to be NS cliches, I don't automatically assume that one or more of these elements being present in world-building or role-playing means that the world or role-play in question is bad or of poor quality. Sometimes, they're just good ole fun and, sometimes, they're actively used in order to subvert established cliches and tropes.
