That sounds like child neglect. This would be a fourth degree felony, punishable by a minimum of 180 days in prison and a maximum of 2 years in prison. In addition to imprisonment, a punitive fine of up to 1,000,000 NPY may also be levied.

Since nobody else suggested a crime, I guess I'll chime in too... this would either be considered voluntary manslaughter (a Class B felony) or murder (a Class A felony).

Voluntary manslaughter is punishable by a term of ten to forty years in prison (five to thirty years if the person is under 18), a maximum fine of 150,000 olives, or both. Murder is punishable by a term of thirty-five years in prison to life imprisonment (or fifteen to forty years if the person is under 18).

The maximum fine that may be imposed for murder is 500,000 olives.

If said group is an enemy of Juansonia, providing aid to them constitutes treason, which is punishable by life imprisonment. If they are not an enemy, it would depend heavily on the nature of the aid.

To clarify, humanitarian aid and/or negotiation/translation assistance does not constitute "aid" for these purposes, and is legal.

Not a crime, as it's not criminalized by the Union's definition of piracy.

Detonating a nuclear, chemical, or biological weapon (without government consent, of course).

Depends on whether they endangered the child's life or not. If they did, it's endangerment of the life of a minor and that's two to four years in prison. If they didn't, it's destruction of property, which is punishable by a small fine and a maximum of two months of imprisonment (although most cases are dealt with by the fine).

Pirating a movie, book, TV series, videogame, anime... you get the point.
