if you mean online piracy, fines + some months in jail at worst.

If you mean going for the 7 seas killing robbing and Kidnapping people, then life in prison without parole and with forced labour.

Drinking a lot of alcohol in public

Drinking alcohol in public is not illegal in itself, but being drunk in public does bring up to 5 days in jail and 1,000 USD fines

The officer would be jailed for manslaughter, 5-10 years. He would also lose his job, and could not become an officer again.

Messing with road signs.

Doing this one too because it was skipped for no reason.

If you grafitti on the road sign, you get fined for vandalism of public property. If you steal one, fined for theft. The fines are usually equal to the cost of the object stolen/vandalized, plus/minus $100.

For BN, crime of blocking the road in protest. (Like the occupation of Ottawa that happened last year.)

If is permitted Chloride (e.g. Sodium Chloride), to poison pests (rat, stray animal, etc.) or is for self-consume purpose, no punishment.
If is for poisoning other persons' purposes or resulted in such outcome, will depend on damage and intention. Could be charged with Murder, Manslaughter, etc.

Considering how the term 'girl' is used, which is seen as the equivalent to a moongender under 25 years of age, this would be youth endangerment at best and child endangerment at worst. Automatic restraining order and 5 months to 10 years in prison if it's a singular offense, triple if it's a repeated offense. Punishment tends to be lesser if the offender is a child, in which case the maximum sentence is a year with full visitation rights, or within three years of the victim's age, which takes at least five months off the sentence.

Murdering 5+ people and resisting arrest.

Either fined or 5 years in jail with forced labour. If its done as a part an anti-government protest, then 5-30 years imprisonment, life sentence or death by beheading depending on the circumstances.
