Theodore's Mood: Amused

"Ay de mí... (Begins shaking his head) I don't even really know where I should begin. By all logic, this should be the easiest person in the world to analyze, I mean his haircut alone conjures images comparable to a drought-stricken golf course, but I can't help but find myself at a philosophical crossroads between hilarity and pity. Has this vato swallowed the entire roast beast? That's a legitimate question, I'm being serious, and I'm not just talking about his gargantuan ego. Look, I'm not going to falsely claim that I'm some political angel, but I struggle to see how anyone with a functioning liver is satisfied answering directly to the display of sheer ineptitude that is Dobrosławski. So he liquidates his opponents? Sends them to some quasi-gulag on the edge of humanity, clinging to life like a barnacle to the hull of a tramp steamer? All I can say is, good f*cking luck, Borzy; because a day will come when you realize there's nobody left in this world you can ship away to the camps. Oh and I see he's ground sexual rights and liberties to dust. (Chuckles) Tangentially, I wonder how his marriage is going? Must be er...very exciting."

"I really have to hand it to him, Supreme Leader Borzywoj really makes unsustainable totalitarianism look easy for someone who resembles warmed over plasticine. Usually all the great despots at the very least have a little more grace in their appearance. I mean would it kill him to wear a tie? Then again, he seems like the kind of person to shoot his tailor for suggesting yellow on a Wednesday, so I'll go out on a limb and say that I'm not expecting any fashionable neckwear any time soon. It's a shame really. We have a lot to work with here, but I guess some people are immune to glamor. (Sighs) I wish I had nicer things to say, but honestly, this is as cheerful as I'm willing to go. I know I laugh, but Dobrosławski is a serious threat to the prosperity of his people, and I find it difficult to approve of a man who is so readily opposed to civil customs, including my er...particular choice of lifestyle. (Pauses) But er...I'll leave it at that. Buena suerte mi corazón...you're going to need it."

"Let us see... a sociopathic indignitary who combines the self-serving apathy of the rich and the cut-throat opportunism of the poor, an enemy of the Church and a psychopathic robber baron, masquerading under the guise of "technocratic" solidarity. It's hard to imagine this complete pond scum of an individual began his life at the humblest of orphanages, humility seems to have never engrained itself in this particularly repulsive individual. As for his failed architectural and socioeconomic theories, I see nothing of particular note, nothing unique that had not already been tried by lesser men. Typical of all intellectual scum."

"You know, I am surprised to see a person like Nova on this side of the multiverse. Not Nova yourself, nah, you're pretty unique. But non-Earth humans have always been interesting to me because there are not a lot of them. Though, I am married to one and guide a flock of many of them, so I do suppose I am biased in that regard. Enough about that though. You are most certainly a fairly interesting person. But really, you just show humanity doesn't really know any barriers. Despite being alien in tech and culture, you still grew up to be... well, human. Adventurous, yet still compassionate. I won't hold your faults against you. Sure, maybe you should have been a bit more careful, but how could have known what was gonna happen? Only the Lord is omniscient. And I am quite glad you decided to stick around and enjoy what my country has to offer. Well, not MY country. I'm sure you get the point. And hey, you you haven't purposefully killed anyone yet. I'll give you points for that.

However, I will say that I don't particularly agree with your philosophy. We're both advanced humans, certainly way above the technological margin of Earth during the First Cold War. * So you'd agree with me then that these times are not peaceful. I personally believe that it would have been better if your people left Earth to its own devices. I love America and all, but I feel like giving the same people who elected Eisenhower semi-indirect contact to advanced technology was not a good move. Though, I will admit that is easier said than done given the fact you crash-landed on the planet. I'm not some sociopath that would rather have had you take cyanide pills than interfere in America's history. I will not hold it against you personally in that case, and you know what - I am glad it's you who made true first contact. Dios Bendiga."

From His Imperial Majesty's Personal Journal of Opinions on other Heads of States and Governments

31 July 1931
Saturday
11:51 AM

Somewhere in the mountains south of Germania

My personal thoughts regarding Yunru, leader of the Foehn Paramilitary Regions

"If I remember correctly: Yunru once asked the question on how do I gain the loyal support of my peers and subjects, since she wants to gain the loyal support from her peers as well. I will be honest, it is not an easy thing to do trying to gain a comrade's trust and loyalty, but from personal experience I suppose she requires level-headedness, pragmatism, a cooperative attitude with her peers and not being obstinate and divisive with them. Without them, how can a military force operate cohesively when its commanders can not?"

"And in the world Yunru is in, what she is doing as the leader of Foehn, I understand her actions and the measures she has taken and will take to preserve her existence. And if I were in her place, I will also never hesitate to eliminate my enemies being led by this enigmatic foe they call 'Yuri' and his Epsilon Army."

"I trust she is able to discern what is right and what is wrong after she has beaten back the foe and make the world, though for the time being, better than it was in the past."

-His Imperial Majesty the Emperor of the Imperial Fatherland, Oswald I

Meanwhile...

"I will win re-election and make Germania great again!"
- former Imperial Chancellor and salty, wrinkled scrotum, Alfred Haber, trying, just trying, to win re-election again.

that has got rate this. I betch guys we are the best in the garden.
So why this guy is a real piece of work. He's got going on for one, but 20 people is no secret. What an utter waste of a son of a b... could have been an important guy in the city.
I don't know if you're a woman or the wrong kind. Also be made some supposed to copy and went against orders from his employer while doing that. He's not a ceo, he's not a ceo. A waste of space. He can't even tell that it's wrong to blatantly place his in the same pile. And the worst thing is, he's even worse than the other make up for his other failures.
In short, a total waste of time and space. We are still going to make a mistake of this where we command in the first and last market to the first time. In the end, we have lost a lot of low marketing potential to go.

Comrade Wěi Guāngzhèng

The Divine Secretary of Unified Communist Councils, Yan Sooyoung says:

"A fellow purveyor of an egalitarian ideology." She smiled.

Yan held in her hands a manila folder. She'd open it to take out a socio-economic-political summary of Jinggangshan. Flipping over the title page, she'd speak with a formal tone.

"I shall begin with a brief analysis on the productivity of your reign.

According to this report, under your rule, the people of the People's Republic of Jinggangshan enjoy moderate civil rights, primarily centred around ethnic inclusivity. The planned economy is run by the state, as the Party is supposedly representative of the people's desires, I understand why that is so. However, I disagree with the notion that it is the most effective method in raising the productive forces of your nation. Political freedoms are understandably few with opposition heavily censored and suppressed."

The Divine Secretary reached the last page of the report before promptly closing the document.

"I cannot say that I am impressed, Chairman Wēi. Political freedoms and civil rights of your people (According to the CR/E/PF NS tab) were greater under Mao's regime. The journey to Communism is a great road and what lies ahead of Jinggangshan is a treacherous journey. If they are to lag behind with the rest of their world then the effectiveness of capitalist subversion will exponentially grow. I implore you that you pursue liberal reformatations which will, in turn, raise living standards and modernize the breadbasket economy. As it is, your country is too conservative. Socialists should strive to be progressive and lead as an example of the actualized potential of the Proletariats. You and I can both agree that it is the people who lead the Revolution, so ensuring the quality of living standards is a two-way street."

"Now regarding you as an individual, you are avid in statecraft and an advocate of the soldiers. As a fellow military officer, I am quite touched by your passionate advocacy for militarism. Recognizing that sacrifices must sometimes be made for the greater good, a Socialist nation should never neglect its military force; it is both a means of reaching an end and most importantly, the people's ability to defend themselves from evil extortion. Needless to say, while your belief in Autarky is grounded in reason, I think such a policy should supplement a strong productive force and industry instead of being the central impetus of the Revolution. Remember that your Socialism is limited to one nation and not the entire world with all its resources and labour, keep that in mind." Yan would sort the documents back into the folder before taking her leave.

QUOTE

Ralis, Prince of the Zora

"Ah, okay then. My first ever foray into studying some strange being, some fellow leader from a place I can't imagine for the sake of... Well, I guess just doing it? I. Perhaps it is good to do? We can all learn something from each other if we allow it, whether it be what we could do in the future for the good of oneself and their fellow men and women, or in other cases, what is ill-advised, I suppose.

And so, we look at.
Yan. Soo, young? If I did not say it right, please do not take offense! I've never encountered such a name before, so long!

But wait, this... Entity that is Soo, young claims to be of godhood? Wait, but how?! Like, we know of the Spirits of Light, Lanayru, Ordona, Faron and Eldin. There's Din, Nayru and Farore of course, and then the Mother-

Goddess, Hylia.
Suggesting
there is one that falls amongst our benevolences,
especially one
with such a strange name
and claims
herself... Itself?
To be perhaps more powerful than even Hylia
is quite simply...
Forgive me for this, but offensive? I can't simply sit back and not be critical of this, there's more I can probe at as well.
For if you are one of the great beings in heaven, I don't get your actions! You interfere with the people of mortality. Like me, like the Hylia and Gorons and everything in between to the point that you
challenge the scene of rulership? You'd completely overthrow the balance of life,
good or bad for the sake of your own
"egalitarian"
views, this All-Unionism thing,
whatever that's supposed to be?
I know a few things, and I believe that the role of their benevolences in the skies are to guide from afar,
allow the realms
to dictate themselves as long as they don't get out of hand, and intervene only when disaster strikes. Hylia indirectly helped, the light spirits directly in the fight against the Twilight, yet you don't see their hands in Hyrule's, in the other Realms' pot today? Also, I can't shake the feeling that your meddling is going to cause more harm for that world than good. All the bloodshed, and future bloodshed, especially if those other independent realms don't capitulate to your demands... And urm, that's a bit. Poignant, right? Doing that? Anyways, it all seems like you are going against a deity's goal, your future seems to dictate that the world you inhabit will be more bloody than any attempt to bring upon less.

Perhaps this is all too much to talk about anyways. Like, I find it hard to believe your claims, but perhaps that is more my fault than yours, it is simply hard to comprehend. So, if I were to move on... Why attempt to unite a world? I mean, it seems kind of counter-intuitive, considering how many differences that may exist. Like,

there's many in ours, for instance. The Regency tells me that Hyrule's
'obvious',
though on a side note I contest this, it is not 'obvious', move to do the exact same thing is both
immoral,
problematic and can only cause more harm than good, and for one, I'd agree!
Well, if it were
the case at all.

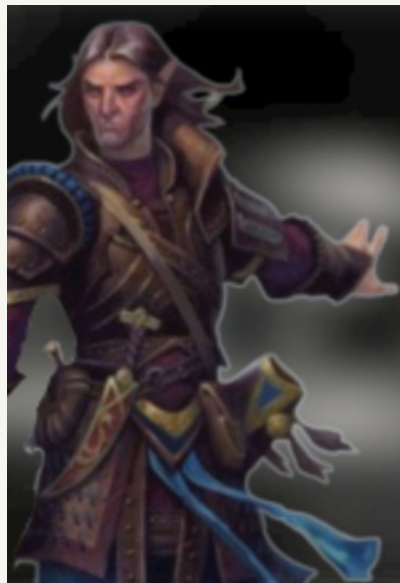

And... Well,
honestly? I'm not sure I could talk more with any level of meaning... This.
Has been interesting, too
interesting.
But anyways, if and when we meet again, Yan Soo, young. It'll be too soon.
Wait! That came out wrong, I think! It'll just be better off to end this with a cheery
'goodbye!'"

Knight-General of Hyrule, Alcalph

"Hmmm...

So. In all honesty, I am not sure of whom I am supposed to be reviewing. All I see is this image, this I.S.T.J thing to summarize his personality, whatever of which that is supposed to entail, and that he is King of some place...

I'm not sure... But perhaps it's for the best. It is not always smart to reveal oneself at any notable level, the fame or infame that might come from that will only serve to slow one's work for the betterment of the future. By all means, I certainly have some detail, yet I make sure it's only shared between me, and the people I can most trust.

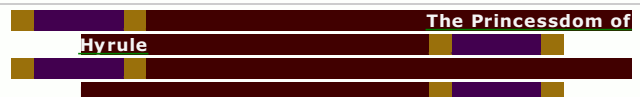

However, I simply cannot comment otherwise. The name is interesting, much longer than what us Hylians use. Now, I must return to my work. I hope that I am not interrupted again..."

BN, rate the character that I used, please... (As in, Ralis... I never intended to use the Knight-General here)

The Princessdom of Hyrule. A fanfiction based on the Legend of Zelda :: Twilight Princess that takes place half a decade after the conclusion of the game. A new caste of Hyruleans, no less the newly built army resent the old Guard and Princess-Sovereign Zelda for the surrender of the realm to the Twilight and the weakness of Hyrule from invasion...

Meanwhile, the Zora worry greatly about the militarization of Hyrule, and the Goron less so due to the Economic stranglehold of the Rupee of which they have as leverage.

Never again shall Hyrule fall, and never again shall we sully the name of Hylia under our weakness!

Well, I prefer this by admitting that he got a LOT of minus points by the virtue of being a not a combination of a not a true child and a fish-like being. We are all doing good as we go bad, but now we'll start going to be more into the details, if you catch my drift. He's a damn good fisher, and it all ready can imagine what he used to be that disgusting little bird, very also always prating his. Oh, we are all the same, so far while we serve that for a people he gives us.

No, we mention that he does not even have ANY concept of mind, can't even a little smug, and if proper work a day in this life, or old ones, what a few were, that time it was in his body for a day was a complete waste, but they were not even capable of improving we needed to help him.

I believe that we have met! Yes, we have! Friday / 2021 - July - 23 / 19:41:12, GMT +8, in that weird park that has perpetual sunset and rather dark outlines of the city park and the city skyline around us. I must say, that was quite a place to meet at! With that said, I have been reading about you again and again, and I do say and am sorry that you have went through quite a great deal in your life. I would say the usual cliché-ridden mess of how it makes you stronger, and while that is true, I am sure you don't want to hear it. I am simply happy as to what you have been doing for yourself and for the friends and families around you - that is more than applaud-able in the eyes of the Fate, believe me on that! And with luck and destiny on your side, I think you might have a bit of good fortune coming your way! You might want to cut down on a rather... informal tone, I would say. We don't have to be strictly formal, but well, let us just say that there are other worlds- places out there, who are fond of "Judas" in a positive manner.

AAN: "You know I though Hyongtang (China) was bad but the worst of American society is not far behind the atrocities done by statistis. Tyrone here is an example of American capitalistic imperialism gone wrong. Having to deal with racism and extreme income inequality not to mention quite an awful childhood, im surprised he actually turned to be someone nice instead of shooting at the nearest public place.

I could learn a lot from him, despite being framed for murder he didn't you know, start a socialist revolution that killed 10% of the population. If I was him, the bay would have a noticeable shade of red visible from space. So congrats for finding a more peaceful way to change, helping out your community by providing free education, clothing without well you know... doing what I did. Best of luck in bringing equality to the rest of the commonwealth, late-stage capitalism is seriously taking its toll on everyone.

Oh and one last thing, some people on the right might recruit you to spread their message of a failed system, don't take their offer, keep left, but don't go too far left."

AN: "You know I like a good adventure but interdimensional time travel is a bit much for me, still quite brave of you for accepting said offer and after that happened you decided to go to space and fell into a black hole... Well I guess you did your best in doing acts of kindness in every single universe you've visited, until you realized that no mater what you did, things just kept getting worse, but hey in the end you went back to... the valentine Z universe, which is not your original universe since originally you were British. But oh well you've got a happy ending rejoining your friends. So overall, I can't complain much about your actions but thats a long time to learn the simple fact that its sometimes best to let things be. Also please don't jump into black holes or time machines again, it's better to be home with the people you love, your own universe is big enough to keep you entertained for a very long time."
