Respectable ranking, Eula is pretty great too.

I heard those singles like last week. I thought they're pretty good, but I don't know how I would rank 'em. I'd have to take another listen.

Take My Bones Away kinda bored me at first, but it got stuck in my head - when I heard the start of March To The Sea i was so repulsed I just switched it off. I tried both again a week or two later and March to the Sea just rocked my mind, I love the intro, the vocals, the way the bass drives along and that burst of hammer ons during the chorus.

First time i heard Eula I was blown away.

Queen of the Borrowed Light, Wolves in the Throneroom.

we, unlike the bourgeoisie, have nothing to lose and therefore our expression will be the only honest one, our words will be the only challenging ones and our art will be the one revolutionary expression. We need new noise and new voices and new canvases to become something more than the last poets of a useless generation.

Yeah, while listening to Take My Bones Away I wasn't nearly as absorbed in or amazed by the song as I was with March To The Sea, but I found the song catchy and rockin' nonetheless. Eula was definitely my favorite, hands down.

Woods of Ypres - "Alternate Ending"

These guys would be great if they had a decent clean vocalist. Songwriting and lyrics are top-notch but the clean vocalist is crap and it really distracts from how great the songs are.
