Billy Talent - "Nothing To Lose"

I wasn't convinced at first. Thought it sounded like a lesser Green Day. But this song is growing on me...some really powerful emotions in this song especially at the end.

That is the appeal. It is genuine. It feels real. The emotional parts are something that can be related to. It is melodic, yet dark, so it feels out of place for punk.

Does this mean you agree Billy Talent is an oddity that stands out among the punk genre, being blackish melopunk?

Billy Talent's first album is by far the darkest. The second album comes close with songs like this one;

Billy Talent - Red Flag

The melodics are 10/10.

Your nation is like a son. What it does right is your merit, as well as what it does wrong is your fault. When you praise it, be lucid and avoid exaggeration. Praising it too much can make it indolent. On the other hand, when you criticize it, be harsh, but do not ridicule it. Do your best to improve it, not through derision or disdain, but through good examples and dedication.

What I meant is they are by far the darkest melopunk band, bordering on comparisons of being the most meloblack of melopunk, if only for the abysmal atmosphere. ☐

As do I. Those are my two favourites, although, Red Flag stands out.
