Named after a famous Hathenian author in the 1650s, the Kapp Doctrine is a doctrine that applies to all branches of the HPAF. It declares that no land taken by Hathian Prime will be kept, no countries will be turned into puppets or colonies, civilian populaces will be treated with respect and common decency, and that the military will actively work to defuse hostile situations in times of peace The Kapp Doctrine has proven to be successful, avoiding starting a major conflict during the Sixth Civil War of Serle when Korthian troops threatened the Hathenian embassy in the capital of Serle. It has also seen easier temporary occupation of territory with very little to no resistance in a majority of the cities captured. It should also be noted that the Hathenian Military has only increased in size due to rising world tensions.

Sounds like a good military doctrine.

Despite the claims that Empress Alejandrina has established a de facto fascist regime and has been accused by the UN of using advanced censorship technologies she has remained extremely popular in the nation with supporters declaring her rule to be "golden age" for their nation.

Current Chairwoman Song Liyuan is a veteran of the Alaskan War, and since taking office, has pushed for greater unity and party discipline.

Surprisingly, their prominent faith denomination is a form of orthodox Judeo-Catholicism. But not really? It seems like good praxis, given their acceptance of all sorts of civil liberties, making it sound like a new-age denomination.

Why would recognizing either of those be ideologically-driven?

Also, I recognize some of the problems with that section, and am planning to rewrite a significant chunk of it, i just haven't thought of any good ways to word the changes yet.

They are a federation of states united under a constitutional monarch. In the Bundesrat, or legislature, each state has a varying number of seats in representation, based on their total populations.

The Kapp doctrine ensures that no foreign land shall be puppeted or annexed by the Hathians and that the army will do everything to defuse tension among the populace. It was conceived in the 1650's by the person of the same name.
