I suggest you try this one, to see it isn't generic. It's Satanic pop. ☐

Lady Gaga - Alejandro

This song title reminds me of the Heroes season that can be described entirely by (in whiny voice) "Alejjjandddrooooooooo!"

I think Lady Gaga can sing but her music I find boring and generic so I can't really get myself to listen to her. I think if she decided to be more musically interesting I might enjoy her more.

I think I like maybe 2 Green Day songs.

Linkin Park I actually like some of their newer songs which was really hard for me to accept because I hated them as I grew up ☐

The weird thing is now that I've expanded my music horizons more I think I tolerate Linkin Park BETTER than I used to.

I think they were unique for their time even though I hear like 4 songs of theirs that sound almost exactly the same. I don't really think their particular style existed much when they started it.

Pink Floyd-Let There Be More Light

It's the American Idiot album I like, because it's much darker themed than most punk.

Lady Gaga isn't always generic. Next song I post I'll show you an example of how it can vary. Although I would prefer she sings for metal.

I ignore any LP album that isn't Meteora or Hybrid Theory, in the same way I ignore any C&C game made by EA (except Generals, so yes I like one LP song from another album) ☐

Linkin Park - Papercut

I actually like all five of Linkin Park's albums, myself.

I am a registered Independent, an enthusiast of Political and Economic history and an American Citizen.

Huh, musically it doesn't sound the most exciting, but it wasn't that bad. The screams kind surprised me.

I'll listen to it after I repeat this 'black' pop metal song. Now I don't need to choose between black metal or pop when I can have both. ☐

Japan is still weird ☐

Even though I don't really care for Babymetal I'm almost tempted to go through more of their stuff for some strange reason.....Maybe because it is just too weird.

I'm going to back to the black metal turned pop metal band now.
That was too much Japan for me. :/

I have to say this is the best pop metal. Yours is second best.
