"If I have to interpret this 'Kotera' as much I could, others will be able to give a more detailed expository him and his philosophy much better, because the more I read his autobiography again and again, the more often I fail to understand his motivation and philosophy. It is that convoluted when it is written in such ainine first-person perspective and exposition of Kotera's philosophies are jumbled. Frankly, it is becoming pointless to discuss him any further."

Do I have to put up a sign that says: 'this nation is still set in the 1920s, there's a war going on, and Oswald is still young' or are there really people who skim over the info?

And I thought the worst response was that Wilhelm-Stalin-Caesar combo.

It's almost tea-time! I'll write this quickly

"My initial reaction to the name of their country was extremely negative, for it brought up visions of ethnic supremacy, movements, conflict, and a group of people who betrayed their country instead of ending their system of oppression. A second nation born out of the same hatred and racist sentiments would be absolutely repulsive and terrible. Though this has been avoided, my new opinion of their leader is not bright either; for her decision reduce the role of the government in providing the welfare for citizens is absolutely foolish. The United States as it was had few enough safety nets for the poor masses prior to its breakup, and now she reduces regulations and welfare further? Such a move is completely contrary to her claim that she wishes the best for her citizens, as anyone with a modicum of education in economics can tell you that laissez-faire economics is exploitation of the many for the benefit of the few. She is completely misguided in her beliefs regarding economics, and I could write much more, but it is almost time for my daily tea-time so I shall end my commentary here with one last note: my opinion of her is extremely negative.

At least she isn't the anarcho-capitalist that she once was.

"The difference between him and I when dealing with a people engaging in non-violent protest demanding change is, being the Kaiser, not responding to their activism by forcefully suppressing them. I reserve that only for those who would actively engage in armed rebellion against their own government. And seeing this man refusing to listen to his people, send in a force to disperse and silence them, and then submit before another power through collaboration is sheer hypocrisy. Francois, for all of his good intentions in raising Literacy by zweiundsiebzig and keeping his country safe from the clutches of his enemies, has damaged his reputation as a war hero who wants to gain the popular support from his countrymen, with his actions to stir the worse opinions from his people. I will give Francois a chance: he may not live for long to turn his career around, and if so, he should make sure that what he is doing to revitalize his people's positive view of him is worth it, never wasted."

I wonder what sorts of desserts are to be found in Balgarria

"Since their government has only recently gained power, there is not much in the way of legislation the president of Balgarria. However, from what I can tell, his policy beliefs and general ideology is correct. To seize power from an oligarchy that only benefitted the few at the cost of oppressing and exploiting the working class was the correct decision, and for this I applaud him. His ongoing attempt to turn Balgarria into a functioning socialist state with a people's democracy that cares for the opinion and voice of the common citizens is also a step forward for the people of Balgarria. This is in addition to his wise support for equality for all persons, and his proper decision to reject warmongering, plutocracy, and capitalism. For now, my opinion is learning positive, and I hope to see real action being taken."

And I am beginning to notice there is nothing different with the leaders who endorse this obscene ideology; they all appear noble in the eyes of many, overthrowing leaders they describe as dictators, and their brand of socialism is the best direction and all should follow it, but if not then they are treated like enemies plotting against the state."

"Ooyima Sakura is naïve for someone who has lived for a very long time, supporting socialists and anarchists wholeheartedly as if their actions of killing their political enemies and targets, there has to be a "just reason" to endorse it. Great Shin-Mutsu Empire

Corporatism, class segregation, and complete absence of social welfare, ruled by a nearly psychopathic coffee drinking Oomiya twin

Information

For every bad reply, Her Imperial Majesty Eternal Empress of the Realm Ito (Oomiya) Sayuri will sacrifice 1,000 class-E3 citizens. Sacrificed so far: 12,000
