I don't know if you are one of those people who have a panic attack any time The Beatles is covered, and instantly dislike it because it's not the original (I'm being over dramatic on purpose, by the way), but here's a good cover of The Beatles song "Let It Be", that I personally like more then the original (But I never was much for The Beatles in the first place), sung by an 11-year old girl and played by her 13 and 15-year old brothers.

I still prefer the original, but they certainly seem to be doing the song justice.

I'm just mainly impressed with their cover for their ages. The girl sings really well for being only 11, in multiple songs (Rolling in the Deep song cover for an example). She has a pretty good range for her age as well. She does come from a father who is a music producer, so it sort of runs in the family. But that doesn't mean it magically makes you great at singing. I wouldn't be surprised if she becomes even greater the older she gets, as well. Her accent sort of adds something to it as well.
