Violating the state mandated dress code in itself by wearing something not part of your occupational uniform in public can result in temporary detention, but public indecency would be punished as bourgeois immorality. Which can result in a year in a re-education camp

If it is the hospital version, yes, but street version, no no no. The seller will be guillotined and ramsacked of all their money, and the buyer, if they are young and never did before, are forgiven. But if they regularly do that, 10 years prison.

Undefined. The law is rather lax. But in majority of case, a state sanctioned rehabilitation will be upon those who willingly surrender themselves.

Highly depends on the severity of the pileup. Fines and liability for damage caused usually ranges from 1,000 USD to 20,000 USD (converted from the national currency of colorful papers). In the case that a person sustained severe bodily injuries in the pileup, the offense is raised to a felony - the person or people deemed the most responsible for the pileup caused will face a large fine or imprisonment up to 1 year. In the case that a person tragically lost their life in the pileup, the person or people deemed the most responsible for the pileup face imprisonment from 5 years up to 10 years.

The traffic laws in Free-Fellas are still being worked on to this day, aided by the Ministry of Road Traffic and its Department of Car Crashes.

De jure, up to 5 years in prison and/or a fine not exceeding £100,000. De facto, this is rarely enforced, if at all.

Life sentence with possibility of parole or two consecutive life sentences with possibility of parole, depending on the severity of the crime. The death penalty is not yet properly maintained in law, nor is it practiced - the majority of the population does not support capital punishment.
