City Girl - Celestial Angel

I discovered her music after it was recommended to me by the YouTube algorithm and it's really nice, downbeat, "chill" music to put on in the background when doing something at home.

We are free to believe that this is the century of authority, a century tending to the right, a Fascist century. If the XIXth century was the century of the individual (liberalism implies individualism) we are free to believe that this is the "collective" century, and therefore the century of the State.

Wardruna - Voluspá (Skaldic Version)

I'm not too big on this style of folk music, but nonetheless it's a neat little album.

For those who know them, it's more of a solo folk album than the typical Wardruna album.

Waterfall - Undertale (2016)

In my opinion, one of the best songs on the soundtrack. Beware, though: If you listen to it while wearing headphones or earbuds, it's one of those songs that sounds like it's filling the whole room/other people can hear it.

Fine Young Cannibals - She Drives Me Crazy

Good song. If it was older than 1988 I might even use the word "classic". Reached #1 on the Billboard Hot 100 in 1989.

What do you think of other Bangles songs, like "Walk Like an Egyptian" (1986) or "Hazy Shade of Winter" (1987)? I can headbang to the latter. ☐

I'd say stuff from the early 2000's and the 90's can be considered a "Classic" now.

Wardruna - Sonatorrek

I will concede, I might consider a song "classic" up to the late 80s or even 1990, but the way I see it, "oldies" and "classic rock" end at 1979. That's just my two cents.

It also seems that this is becoming a bit of a threadjack.
