My opinion is positive, even though he believes his armor is for female when clearly it is unisex and has more protection in the breastplate rather than the shoulders. But I mean who am I to judge I'm wearing nothing but a veil of my own energy because fabric is too weak to rest on it... no I'm not putting effort into making clothes for myself that's after this war nonsense all blows over."- The first king.

Rapture City

- In the underwater city, two roles have emerged from the City's ongoing civil war: the City Monitors who defend the peace and the Red Caps who fight against unjust systems. The city's infrastructure is crumbling under its own weight and kinship is snuffed by the paranoia of totalitarianism. Yet the people would be in for a surprise as their virtual overlord have died many years ago as the oppression continues under his name...
- Not an 1-1 exact replica of Bioshock lore and Rapture City. Only the city's atmosphere and setting is maintained.

"Subject 'Ariel Mercer' is a rare specimen, one which seems to have regressed in evolutionary terms. From transitioning from a relatively civilized and sane being, into a mindless, primitive creature in such short order is indeed fairly interesting. The conditions of the environment in which this transition took place seem to have been rather appalling, and quite dangerous. I would like to run similar tests to that of the case of Subject 'Mercer,' and discover at which point do sentient beings abandon all morality, all mental sophistication, all culture, and are relegated back into an animalistic state, concerned only with survival, and the acquisition of their next meal. Subject 'Mercer' has not yet reached this stage, not fully. He can no longer function normally in a civilized society, yes, but he is concerned with things other than survival, like the hunting of new and larger game. Such is irrelevant to survival, and is driven by a human desire quite foreign to me. Subject 'Mercer' has given me new ideas to ponder upon, and I thank him for it. But he is little more than an animal, one which cannot function in any sophisticated civilization. Any such civilization would be better off to terminate him than allow him access to themselves. Such would only end up in a bloody massacre, due to the cannibalistic and overall violent tendencies of Subject 'Mercer.' I certainly would not spare him if he attempted to interfere in the order which I strive to uphold. For order is unknown to this creature, as are most other concepts other than hunting or gathering."

- Disadus, the Sentinel Enforcer

"I go from commenting on such a primitive lifeform to one of the most advanced beings I have ever come across in my studies. Subject 'Sarathress' is quite impressive, whose every ability appear to be unmatched. And alike myself, a true devotee of efficiency. No such race of creatures as technologically advanced as the Subjects 'KazAn' exists within my native Vade galaxy, and it would indeed be a great privilege to study such a specimen. Though I do believe it is in the best interests of Mithridatium to remain unassociated with the Subjects 'KazAn' species, lest it be eliminated in the same speedy fashion of the other species and nations which attempted to rival them. But since Mithridatium is no where as advanced as their kind, it is unlikely to be targeted by Subject 'Sarathress,' though that is, not yet advanced, I should say."

I'm startled, wroth with curiosity as I think of his mother. Why? Because she was the daughter of a man who might have some kind of ancient, forgotten, exotic, cross-cultural ancestor. And by extent, is Maximilian (what a coincidence, a namesake of my predecessor) descended from him? I contend with some contradictions at this moment.

"She speaks of God and her 'right', as if she even has a right to rule. All hereditary monarchy is illegitimate. The strong, those who are both warriors and politicians, rule, the weak cower, and those who scheme go plot in the corner, dreaming of the power others command. It is evident that she, being neither a warrior nor a politician, has no real power, instead ceding it to her Prime Minister, a much more respectable man."

"Nope, nope, nope! I don't care if this dude beat some prussians, I still wouldn't follow him. He is all about those old traditions and pushiness, and this is far from groodalicious. In other words, my opinion about this legitimate foreign leader is negative and diplomatic relations establishment is unlikely."- Shawn Bjornson

Skyhooked is MT/PMT with a few FT elements. Military is factbook only. NS stats are mostly non canon.

I need to keep a list of nations that are created, and the universes with people inside. Anyway, for this one? For this lovely friend, I am fine with her! She's... she's pretty normal from what I can tell, so I am okay with that. No big issues, is what I am saying. See ya around, hm hm!

I have heard of all the friendly interactions with the other Valentians, so... I am very glad for that! Of course I am glad, because otherwise, I don't think me as a Fate will be talking much! Yeah, anyway, I am positive! Sorry if I have not been talking much. I have been busy with some other stuff lately, and I must celebrate my recent winnings!

"Ms. Allison possesses a rather extraordinary backstory and resulting capabilities. Certainly not someone to be trifled with. I wonder if I could replicate that sort of thing. Maybe if I were to start throwing people into a black hole, one of them would emerge with reality-warping superpowers... Certainly something to consider. Anyway, I hope that this 'Fate' generally stays away from our glorious republic. She would be most difficult to deal wth."
