Alas, a factor of his being that does surprise me is the fascination to the artistic products of mortal men while simultaneously incarnating as a being that can manipulate reality itself... a paradox? Or just an inquisitive collection of spirits? I cannot really tell..."

I came to judge leaders. Rulers, persons of renoun - not thugs and psychopaths. The information available on this "Lapland" is a joke, her so-called revolution is little more than a murderous sham, and she herself resembles a despondent adolescent's fan-fiction more than anything remotely fit for rule. I have few words to spare on ones who waste my time, and this may well be the most egregious example of such I've ever come across on here. Ambitions rooted in ruin are destined to end in ruin - such is the harsh reality that this pitiful excuse for a head of state seems to have neglected to account for. And good riddance, to her and the trainwreck I struggle to call her regime both.

A "A máquina diz, mas você é o dono do seu próprio destino." series of your actions that follows, that is certain. The wars and coups, however... did not seem to be your doing! That is the fascinating stuff, you see? I am not a fan of your politics... some of your politics. Most of your politics, such as pacifism, and equal pay, is pretty amazing, even if done by force. You are quite a mixed bag, if I have to say so myself. I am certainly not a fan of the leader forcing themselves on people's lives, but you seem to be doing quite a good job with keeping your nation well and alive. For that, I must say... you can't predict people completely, but you can certainly look them up and see that they are not too bad for the most parts. For that, I am most impressed, hm hm! Fascism and Dictatorship aside, you seem like a rather good man in all the other aspects, so my support for you is... it's there, but I have to say that I am not a very big of you because of those two things. Have a good day, still! Eu preciso ir. O destino pode ser imprevisível. (I must go. The Fate can be unpredictable.)

Then again, I can hardly complain, this is Valentine Z we're talking about. An Ethiopian man could be called Chinese in their world... Don't jinx me on that.

Likewise, enough about her appearance. I am not here to gawk at a lady I already have a lover, dammit, I am here to give my opinion on them. I can safely say that, looking over their profile, that they are fully respectable in my eyes. The fact you were so willing to assist your realm of 'Brah-zihl' is certainly respectable, I don't think I would have the guts to try and take down someone like Gwen. Of course, you were teleported to that... bizarre almost hell-like dimension. I am sorry you had to go through that, but you're out now. And hey! You made it to Valentine Z. That's a... fate I would be happy to have. Alright, I am sorry. You're not even Herr Fate. Likewise, I do indeed like you, and I wish for you a good day!"

Dandi is a man before my times, so I must be fair in criticizing him. Though it is to note, he is far liberal for his timeline. Hell, I'd consider him leagues above a quarter of congress, and he's a crusader for goodness sake. I'd say you're an honorary American, but I think you and many others would consider that an insult. Speaking of hell, I can sympathize with that war of yours with the devil. Surprised he didn't come from Ann Habor, but hey, you won either way. "Machines are useful contraptions, as they can perform simple tasks in record time, or difficult jobs with relative ease. I acknowledge that my realm employs machines more sparingly than in most other nations, but I do not want it to seem that they are neglected here. For I entrust a machine to ensure the internal stability of my vast realm, a daunting task, but one in which he fulfills with unrivaled efficiency. In my view, machines are built to serve a purpose, and ones which do not serve such purposes they were created for are useless. Such is the case with this detestable 'Paramount.' What purpose does he serve? What task does he fulfill? I can tell you it is not the one which he was designed for. He seeks to 'assimilate,' whatever that means. I must say I would have expected a sentient mechanoid to be rather xenophobic toward organics, which this one somewhat is, but he seeks to merge the intelligence of organic beings with his own. Though wouldn't a sentient machine desire to be uncorrupted with all the useless uniqueness that organic intelligence entails? This is just a personal inquiry of mine, however. I have made known my distaste for this being, as it is well deserved. This malfunctioning drone should be immediately shut down, and preferably thrown into a scrapyard to rust. It is truly useless, its continued existence benefits no organic being, rather it threatens them. Mithridatium would gladly participate in a campaign intended to destroy the Octavians, and I am certain that many other star-faring nations would eagerly join us in such a venture. For this Paramount gives no reason for any self-respecting organic to tolerate it, rather it galvanizes them in opposition against it. And only the weak-willed and submissive choose to 'assimilate' with it. Using mere common sense, I recommend the complete and utter extermination of these machines and any aliens so foolish enough to serve them, their worlds should be pounded into submission by orbital bombardment and rendered inhospitable forever. Such would certainly make machines think twice before they attempt to usurp their creators or masters, if they can even truly think at all."

"Disgusting vermin like this 'Emperor' along with the rest of his kind would be dutifully liquidated in my realm, and for good reason. What do these felines contribute to any sort of society? They are little more than pests, who frequent to indulge in hedonistic pleasures as opposed to actually be committed to some form of occupation. They are even too weak to serve as slaves, truly useless creatures. This Emperor himself boasts of being different to the rest of the Jellicles, but I see little distinction between them. Nothing more than a lowlife mongrel, he is just as detestable as the rest of them, and would not be spared extermination. It seems strange to me that the inhabitants of the city of London have not committed to remove these cats from their streets. Surely they must not enjoy having such filthy creatures run amuck in their city, eating garbage and sputtering about with their horrid dances and songs."

QUOTE

"She has have symphonies. My species is so rare that I often find myself wondering if I am the last of my kind. I know the pain that she must be going through with the loss of her people. But we also have many people willing to share and support us in our pain, the Valentians for her and the Armada for me. If she wants to talk to someone that has gone through what she has, I'll happily lend my ear."

Zravvisk is the name of our species, but other people commonly call us "Space Dragons".

Don't meddle in the affairs of dragons for you are crunchy and tolerable with condiments.

A day in the Armada isn't too different from a Star Trek episode if almost everyone in the Federation was a dragon and spiritual.

Trying to collect every NS pokemon card. Almost 630 collected.
