Apparently Rommel converted to Islam and offered his service to Libya to defeat the Western powers and Israel. Then, the then-reigning Sultan Idris I was deposed in a military junta. Surprisingly, as Libya is an Arabic nation, actual advancements when it comes to women's rights were made after the Sultan was overthrown in favor of the Jamahiriyah system, which had socialist and direct democratic elements.

Plenty of advancements in women's rights were made under nationalist secular governments in Egypt, Libya, and Iraq so it's nothing surprising.

They hold less territory than I expected of a galactic Empire and the hyperlanes are limited as of now.

Everyone always uses the black market factbook...

The population of an entire planet rebelled against them for being treated like slaves, in response the entire population was effectively executed as part of a weapons test that also made the planet functionally uninhabitable.

The capital planet of Remulia is 2.4 times Earth's mass and has a population of 10 billion. Capital planets in other systems include Cretiu, which only has aquatic life, and Ak-123, which only has unicellular life. These planets serve various purposes such as farming.

They have a religion based on the worship of a spherical being composed of pure positive energy, yet the symbol of this entity is a funky demon-winged heart.

Nothing insidious about that at all.
