I really can't, as easy as it might make responses for others in this thread to me, for two main reasons: 1) the old parties were based on modern-day politics, which would no longer apply to this new post-apocalyptic setting - when the nukes fall, why would anyone care about gay marriage, to paraphrase the Cliches thread here; and 2) previous parties were based upon a Leskya as a proletarian state, and this is no longer the case - we're full communism now, babey. No more need for class dictatorship, because there are no economic classes left. Capitalistic political parties would likewise no longer make sense: it'd be like having a pro-feudalism party in a modern liberal capitalist democracy.

Besides, I just like the weird and wacky parties of now.

Anyway.

I see now. I guess it wouldn't really make much sense having most of the old parties (at least the ones from the Conservative Coalition) in New Leskya, so it's understandable. And I guess the new parties are kinda cool and wacky.

/skipme too.

The Social Democrats. The big-tent nature of ANC without a firm ideological center means it is quite a wild card, however.

If men were angels, no government would be necessary. If angels were to govern men, neither external nor internal controls on government would be necessary. In framing a government which is to be administered by men over men, the great difficulty lies in this: you must first enable the government to control the governed; and the next place, oblige it to control itself.
