If that's something Texten does just for the fun of it or for their own RPs (that is, they are the OP instead of forcing NS stats into other people's RPs), then let them be, I suppose.

Your obsession with them, on the other hand, is concerning.

Textentuck uses them to flex their Stat-based muscles, or in simpler terms: Force to Convey Power. which is a disgrace to the International Community.

I'd still push his face in. It is kinda dickish to lord one's stats over others, tho.

Godulan Puppet #2, RPing as technologically advanced tribal society founded by mongols and vikings (and later with multiple other Asian and Native American cultures) motivated by an intrinsic devotion to the spirit of competition. Jokes aside, as I said, if he made it clear in the OP that he is going to use his Force to Convey Power thing and use NS stats in the first place, then you will have to expect that.

On the other hand, if he suddenly decided to use it in the middle of some ICly fight, without it being mentioned in the OP, then it's a little bit of a power-hungry move, admittedly.

Stats - even if I'm an avid supporter of them - should not be a limiting factor in a RP.

Ya don't need to participate in Tex's thread if you dislike their RP style. You can retcon yourself out with a single post.

Hey, there's a cliché! People continuing an RP even after it's gone toxic! (Related to the 'SOMEBODY IS WRONG ON THE INTERNET!' phenomenon)

NS Cliche I sometimes see: Nations with magic will have it almost entirely used militarily, with little-to-no explanation given for if it's used in civilian or governmental matters when mages are off-battlefield.

Yup, the existence of magic in a society would fundamentally mold the way people interact with each other and the world.

NS Cliche (I'm surprised that I don't see more often): Undersea nations. Aside from a few bioshock ones, I barely see nations that have the majority of the population undersea, which is weird to me now that I think about it, considering they're quite popular in fiction.

ig the undersea nation gimmick does appeal as much as anime, communism, space nations, MURICA, or oppressive empires

Also I would honestly say that having an undersea nation could kind of limit you in regards to RPs since, you know, most nations on this hellsite aren't underwater ones?

How does that stop them from rp'ing, I can imagine the undersea nation being called a motherfucker because their submarine fleet which is technologically

eons ahead of current naval technology just wiped out an entire navy

I feel like there are a few ways to circumvent this (advanced diving suits, magic, a submarine force) but that's a fair point, and I can see why that could dissuade people who don't want to limit other people/their interaction with others

When it comes to this thread in particular, it's because Nationalist Northumbria has a tendency to cause massive arguments in this thread due to them having a history of constantly bringing up the fringe political movement they support in this thread (and their insistent belief that it is anything other than a fringe political movement) as well as the general arguments that sprouted whenever people criticize their infamously low-quality RPing (most infamously their 'Munkcestrian dodging' 'tacting' AKA thinking people can somehow dodge a goddamn bullet being fired at them).

Also can't forget their tendency to immediately show up in this thread as soon as someone vaguely talks about them at all or if someone mentions Northumbria.
