"Sandre Maint is obviously quite intelligent. He has a PhD, for one, and has risen to the top of the political stage in a relatively short amount of time. I am still irked at him for his accusation that I stole 50 barrels of Selenan wine. The perpetrators were doing so on my behalf, yes, but I would not stoop as low as to steal wine. Even when I've had a few glasses."

"The Alastair we know today - the drunkard, childish, foolish king - is a result of his childhood. I've learnt that he was an overweight child, and was bullied by his classmates on those grounds, and he was generally an emotionally distant member of his family. Nevertheless, despite his seemingly peevish actions, he is intellectual and a brilliant person. I hope the best for him and his wife, and may he have a happier life, and, Alastair, I request again as a well-wisher, limit your drinking."

"Cube-people? Frog-folk? Grey aliens? The fuck kind of drugs is that world on? Whatever, I just need to talk about their leader. Well, I find it interesting that their nation is 'democratic socialist' yet it operates on highly racial lines. Though, I guess the same could be said of the RCAS, though I think the socialism of Ruğa is more like the Socialist Commonwealth's than the RCAS's.

Okay, the prime minister is a poisonous frog? I find it odd that he is 'friendly and pleasant', despite being a hardened war veteran. That dichotomy keeps coming up. Between the leftist pretensions and the brutal reality. Perhaps in a way, we aren't so different. They have sphere-people and toads, we have the negro. Azania and China could be considered the Pilkobufo of our world.

I need to know more about him to have a more personal opinion. That and see what his opinion of me is first. Perhaps, he wouldn't condemn me like so many around here."

"I'm... not entirely sure how i feel about this one, yet. there are a few things that i can agree with like anti-capitalism and anti-slavery, but there are a lot more conflicting differences than similarities. How people behave presently is often shaped by what kind of a past that they have, which, in Cassidy's case, was that he had an early life of bullying. This could be the reason for his disdain for those of different colour... I will keep my opinion short and neutral, since i would rather actually speak with this one to get a true first impression, if the chance ever presents itself. While he may have a negative opinion from several others, I will stick by how he behaves with me personally...

"Someone who has experienced a military conflict, huh? As far as we know, plasma is the fourth state of matter, and a very hot one at that, so having received severe plasma burns probably is not the best feeling in the world. At least she received recognition before being discharged from military as expected. Winning due of calm demeanor? Of course - flexing your physical strength or shouting like an ogre is not going to get you very far. Her approach of isolationism yet having free trade between most of nations seems like the optimal solution, although being aggressive and claiming more territories seem to fly in face of isolationism, does it? Oh, non-interventionism and isolationism are not exactly the same, got it. Overall, we are neutral on her."
